Washington — Herbert Hoover's change in plans has cleared the skies here. All sorts of complications had been developing which it had been feared would have meant a pilgrimage by congressional leaders to Miami.

By deciding to come to Washington first, Mr. Hoover is bowing to the will of the men whose cooperation he will need most in getting legislation. Try as they may to give the impression that the decision is an extra relief program and sundry other matters, it is wholly within their power, the leaders have been somewhat bewildered. There is a difference of opinion as to when the tariff shall be revised. And there is a good deal of doubt about the details of the farm relief plan to say nothing of some very important appointments which will have to be made for the new administration and in which congress will have voice.

Mr. Hoover could send to the extra session of the senate which meets normally on March 5, all the names of officers he wants confirmed and make it unnecessary to keep the house of representatives in session at all.

NEED CONSULTATION
To agree upon some of these appointments requires consultation with congress. Mr. Hoover has been looked upon as likely to be a one-man executive, but some of his friends in congress have insisted that the two houses would find a welcome surprise when he really gets down to business.

Mr. Hoover had been hearing from his friends here about the confusion in the legislative situation and how important it is for him to consult in person the men on Capitol Hill. By coming to Washington at once Mr. Hoover will be able to talk not only with the congressional leaders but with President Coolidge, whose viewpoint on pending legislation and on appointments to fill present vacancies it will be vital to know.

It will not take Mr. Hoover long to find out that there is here a distinct aversion to an extra session and that this proceeds mostly from those who do not want the tariff disturbed. The revision, however, is desired by another group and the politics of the whole situation is not easy to delineate. The tariff has become interwoven with the farm program, too, and Mr. Hoover will have to make up his mind on what he wishes to do about it. Once the decision is made, uncertainty will depart. The difficulty to date has been that nobody knew just what was coming. Business dislikes hesitation and doubt. Mr. Hoover during his 10 days here will be able to lay down a policy with respect to the extra session which will have the approval of leaders of congress and President Coolidge for the latter's influence is essential to the completion of the legislative program in this congress so as to avoid an extra session.

Hunt 2 Brown-co Men As Bank Robbers

LA DUKE SAYS HE WAS FORCED TO HELP PAIR

Youth Tells Police He Helped Recover Loot Under Threat of Death

Green Bay — (AP) — Two Brown-co young men, both with criminal records, were sought by police Thursday as the perpetrators of the $40,000 robbery of the Farmers Exchange bank, on the story of Byron LaDuke, 20, who said he was forced to aid them recover the loot where they had hidden it in the country.

LaDuke's story, which police said was partly corroborated by his employer, John Greenwood, garage proprietor, was that he was found at a dance by two men, one from Green Bay, the other from De Pere, who forced him under threats of death to help them.

He drove his girl home from the dance after being threatened by the men and returned there to meet them. With the DePere man, who, LaDuke said, was intoxicated, at the wheel of LaDuke's car, which he had rented from Greenwood, they drove to Suamico corners. Not far from the spot where the men had abandoned the car of Thelma Noel, assistant cashier of the bank, in which they had escaped, the men, LaDuke said, uncovered the loot and returned to Green Bay. In the basement of the Green Bay's home, LaDuke said, the two robbers divided the money.

LaDuke said they went to the spot at 10 o'clock in the evening. This has puzzled police, Captain

RYAN NOT GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER, RULING

Oshkosh — (AP) — In a verdict handed down Thursday, Circuit Judge Fred Beltinger of Oshkosh found J. D. Ryan, Chicago not guilty of fourth degree manslaughter in connection with an automobile accident persons were killed.

The case was given to the judge without oral testimony by the state, with the stipulation he make the decision. Testimony from civil suits against Ryan several months ago was offered instead. In the civil suits P. J. Dennenny, driver of the car which was in the accident with Ryan's, was awarded $14,000 damages, but this verdict was set aside as perverse and the case finally was settled out of court.

In the accident last summer Mrs. P. J. Dennenny, Lincoln Lee and Virginia Lee, all of Chicago, were killed. Dennenny claimed Ryan ran into her car when he swung out to pass another machine. Ryan made the same claim against Dennenny.

Coolidges Have Day Of Rest On Island Retreat

Sapelo Island, Ga. — (AP) — After a fatiguing journey of nearly 24 hours between Washington and Sapelo island a day of rest was arranged for President Coolidge Thursday by his host, Howard E. Coffin.

Numerous trips to points of historic interest in the adjacent country are in prospect for the chief executive, however, and before long he hopes also to indulge in his favorite recreations of shooting and fishing on the amply stocked estates of Mr. Coffin and the waters surrounding his island home.

Governor L. G. Hardman of Georgia, has cancelled a trip to California where he expected to see the football team of Georgia Tech oppose California in the annual New Year's day Tournament.

President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived on Friday and welcome the President and Mrs. Coolidge to Georgia.

In contrast with the busy atmosphere that surrounds the executive offices at the white house, Mr. Coolidge found himself secluded upon an almost inaccessible island off the South Georgia coast.

Sapelo, one of the largest of the sea island group, lies some 25 miles north and east of Brunswick, Ga., by are St. Simons and Jekyll islands, while 60 miles farther up the coast is the city of Savannah.

Cut Runde Prison Term To 15 Years

The sentence of Fred W. Runde, 27, serving a life term in the state prison at Waupun for kidnaping Frances Webb of Neenah on April 13, 1926, was reduced to 15 years by Governor Fred R. Zimmerman at Madison Wednesday afternoon.

The governor commuted the sentence because no intent to harm the child has been disclosed in Runde's trial and because the law governing kidnaping had been modified since Runde was sentenced.

In 1926 the court was not permitted to exercise discretion in sentencing Runde, the law requiring a life term. Since then the law was amended to permit sentence of from one to thirty-five years.

Runde, who has spent about two years in prison, will be eligible to parole after serving about 7 1/2 years of his term.

The firm announcement from Madison was that Runde was paroled but this was denied by Col. J. L. Johns, secretary to the governor.

The Webb kidnaping aroused the entire Fox River valley. Frances, then 6 years old, was kidnaped by Runde in front of a schoolhouse and was carried about in his car for an entire day. She was left at a home near Fond du Lac when posses were abandoned. He had demanded $3,000 from James Webb, the child's father and his former employer.

Runde was captured at Madison and pleaded insanity. Specialists pronounced him sane and he then pleaded guilty. When sentenced he said that he was sorry for what he had done and that he could not explain his actions. The child had been well treated during her abduction. Runde's pardon is effective Dec. 24.

A conditional pardon was granted to Roland E. Pieper, convicted in Waupaca county court for embezzlement. Pieper is ordered in the pardon to refund all the money he embezzled.

BYRD'S PARTY REACHES BASE IN POLE ZONE

Building Village of Portable
Houses 2,400 Miles
from Civilization

New York — (AP) — Commander Richard E. Byrd and his companions Thursday stood face to face with the vast unknown of Antarctica they set out to explore.

In a wireless message sent to Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, through the New York Times, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and associated newspapers, Commander Byrd announced the arrival of his ship, the City of New York, at the great mysterious ice barrier which drives its wedge into the continent of ice and snow surrounding the South pole.

At the Bay of Wales the party has challenged the towering ice cliff of the barrier that stands sentry on the last frontier of geographical exploration, 2,400 miles beyond the last outpost of human habitation.

From this great ice-capped continent of 6,000,000 square miles, Commander Byrd and his scientists hope, with the aid of airplanes, to wrest secrets which will add to men's knowledge of the globe upon which they live.

Arrival of the ship on Christmas day brought the explorers to the scene of their adventure in what is mid-summer at the "bottom of the world," when milder temperatures and less unfavorable weather offer more auspicious conditions for flying and sailing observation.

TAKE EQUIPMENT ASHORE
The first task which faced the party was the landing of their planes and other equipment. This had to be sent up to the top of the ice cliff for establishment of a base from which air excursions and dog-sledge dashes will be made towards the pole. The base will assume the aspect of a village of portable houses and workshops carried as part of the $1,000,000 equipment of the expedition. Storage for the tons of food and fuel and hangars for the four planes in the air squadron of the expedition also must be provided at the base.

Dog teams will be used to transport supplies to a line of emergency stations stretching from the base toward the pole for use by the fliers if they are forced down.

Before his departure last summer, Commander Byrd said he had no intention of making a flight across the pole merely as a spectacular stunt but that the planes, equipped with special map-making cameras and other scientific instruments, would be employed primarily in observation and gathering data concerning the physical features of the region surrounding the South pole.

The party, which numbers 65, is equipped and provisioned to spend two years in the enterprise.

Around on the South American side another expedition, headed by an aviator, is known to be looking toward a flight over the South pole. The party is under command of Sir George Hubert Wilkins, who has joined with Commander Byrd in declaring that neither regards the other as a rival for the first flight across the pole.

Two explorers, both using dog teams on overland trips have visited the South pole. They were Roald Amundsen and Capt. Robert F. Scott.

ASSAULT VICTIM IN SERIOUS CONDITION

The condition of Abraham Levin, 70, who was slugged and robbed by an unknown assailant last Sunday morning, was unchanged Thursday noon according to attending physicians. He is in danger as a result of the fractured skull resulting from the blow on the forehead by his assailant, who is believed to have been wearing brass knuckles.

The assault took place in Mr. Levin's fruit store at 214 E. College. After striking and robbing the old man the assailant escaped through a rear door and down the alley.

Police Thursday were working on several fresh clues and Police Chief George T. Prim believes the unknown robber will be apprehended.

FIREMEN IN DANGER AS TRUCKS SKID ON SLIPPERY PAVEMENT

Fire Chief and Fighting Equipment Threatened in Accident

Several members of the Appleton fire department, including Fire Chief George P. McGillan, narrowly escaped possible serious injury early Wednesday evening when the fire pump truck No. 1, which was leading the way to answer a call on Summit street, skidded at the corner of W. College and Summit street, blocking the way of the hook and ladder truck, the police car, and the fire chief's car which were following.

The first truck skidded on the slippery pavement and blocked the way for the hook and ladder truck close behind. John McLaughlin was driving truck No. 1. Before McLaughlin was able to get his big truck started again and clear the crossing the hook and ladder truck, driven by Alvin Boelke, turned sharply to the right to avoid a collision and the front wheels jumped the curb and went into a ditch.

The back wheels of the hook and ladder truck skidded along the curb carrying the rear end of the truck across the road completely blocking it for the police and fire chief's cars which were following.

Elmer Brockman, who was riding on the hook and ladder truck, jumped out when it seemed to him as if the driver would be unable to prevent a collision. He was slightly bruised.

The police car was brought to a stop, after skidding against the curb, only a few feet from the trucks which blocked the road. The fire chief's car, which was being driven by Louis Hinz, was traveling so fast that it was impossible to stop on the slippery pavement. Driver Hinz, however, turned the car toward the boulevard and the car jumped the curb and finally ended up against another curb on the opposite side of the street.

None of the fire equipment was damaged.

HAS 5 DAYS TO PROVE HE DIDN'T MURDER MAN

Madison — (AP) — Convicted of murdering Nick Dissen and sentenced to life imprisonment at Waupun, John G. Beler, 23, hopes to prove that he is innocent of the crime by interviewing the widow of the slain man, Mrs. Helen Dissen, whose alleged "confession" caused his conviction.

Mrs. Dissen, who served a two-year sentence on a statutory charge for her relations with Beler, is held in the LeCrosse county jail pending the "interview" with Beler.

Beler was given five days in which to prove his innocence, according to a temporary release signed Wednesday by Governor Fred R. Zimmerman. Beler left with a deputy warden for LeCrosse.

Dissen was found dead in his farm home Aug. 26, 1926. The home was partially burned. Investigation revealed that the fire was of accidental origin, but showed that Dissen had been murdered. Mrs. Dissen "confessed" that Beler was the slayer.

BABY BOY IS LEFT ON FARM HOME DOORSTEP

Kewaunee — (AP) — A baby boy about 2 weeks old was someone's gift to Mr. and Mrs. Klaus Johnson. When the elderly farm couple, who live in the town of Carlton, opened their door on Christmas eve preparatory to making a call at a neighbor's home they found the baby on the doorstep, wrapped in a blanket.

The only clue to identification was a "figure 4" in red waxed on one of its tiny garments. District Attorney Leo Blummer is investigating.

NO FEE FOR LAWYER DEFENDING WERNER

Believes Youth Didn't Intend to Harm Brother—Sister
Helps Louis

Milwaukee — (AP) — In the belief that Louis Werner, 18, intended no harm when his brother, Alois, 22, was fatally injured in a first flight Christmas day, Attorney F. Carney Nelligan announced Wednesday night he had taken the case for Louis without fee.

Louis also found another friend Wednesday night, in his 21-year-old sister, Blanche Werner, a registered nurse, who came here from Chicago to be present at the coroner's inquest scheduled at 8 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The inquest was to be conducted by Coroner Henry Grundman and George Skogmo, assistant district attorney.

At the same time naval authorities announced an investigation of the death of Alois, who was attached to the marine corps. Louis had been discharged from that branch of service three weeks ago.

Admiral Thomas F. Cravin, commandant of the Ninth Naval district with headquarters at Chicago, has ordered a board of inquiry to investigate the death. The purpose will be to ascertain whether the death was "in line of duty," in which case his mother would receive six months pay.

Their findings will be sent to the judge advocate general of the navy at Washington, D. C., who will make final disposition of the case.

"Don't worry brother, I'll stick with you," Miss Werner told Louis at the police station. "I know what conditions were at home."

Blanche strongly censured her mother for turning against Louis in his "time of need."

Louis was visibly affected when he was told Wednesday that Alois had died from a skull fracture received when he fell to the pavement under the first blow of the fight. He maintains that he had been forced into the fight.

Charges against Louis will not be determined until after the inquest.

SIX KILLED WHEN TRAIN RUNS INTO AUTOMOBILE

Chicago — (AP) — Six persons were killed early Thursday when a Soo line train struck an automobile at a grade crossing in Oak Park.

The automobile, carrying seven passengers, had stopped as one train passed by, and then had gone ahead, directly into the path of the other.

The bodies of those killed were mangled, the train striking the touring car squarely in the center. One boy was decapitated. Another boy probably was fatally injured.

The train stopped several hundred yards away, and many passengers hurried back to assist in recovering the bodies. Five of those in the automobile were killed outright.

THREATEN DIAMOND RUSH IN S. AFRICA

200 Policemen Patrol Fields
Recently Discovered
Outbreak Feared

Capetown, South Africa — (AP) — Two hundred policemen Thursday were patrolling the diamond fields of Namaqualand, where diamonds were only recently discovered. Threats have been made that the people would start prospecting in defiance of government orders against it.

Reports were current here of clashes between the police and the people who have been reduced to desperation by a prolonged drought which ruined their crops. No definite information, however, was obtainable.

Two thousand persons at a recent meeting at Port Nolloth demanded that the government throw open 34 acres of state diggings or else employ additional diggers. It was understood that the people threatened that if these demands were not granted by Friday the state diggings would be rushed.

The Namaqualand member of the house of assembly metored from Port Nolloth to confer with the ministers of mines and justice. He said that he added that unless the government took immediate and careful action, a serious outbreak accompanied by considerable bloodshed would be inevitable. Later a body of police were rushed to the area by motor-buses, bringing the forces there up to 200 men.

The government has insisted upon restricting prospecting in order to protect the diamond industry.

MAY NOT TALK TILL AFTER HE TAKES OFFICE

Congress Perplexed at Report That He Will Not Express Preferences

COULD ASSURE HARMONY.
Views at Washington Differ
on Time for Calling
Special Session

Aboard U. S. S. Utah — (AP) — Herbert Hoover is not expected to concern himself with pending legislation on his visit to Washington. He has indicated that he will await his inauguration and the result of this session of congress before deciding on his program. The president-elect intends to devote himself primarily while in Washington to conferences with party leaders on cabinet appointments and to making a personal report to President Coolidge about his Latin and South American tour.

While pressure continues to be brought on Mr. Hoover for elaborate inauguration ceremonies, he is determined to adhere to his original plan for induction into office under as simple a program as has been held within recent years.

This is one of the matters he is expected to dispose of before leaving Washington for Florida late in January. His plans after the Florida visit are not completed, but it is understood that he has in mind a visit to Havana, Cuba, and to Santo Domingo, Costa Rica, before his inauguration. At present it is regarded as unlikely that he will find time to visit Mexico City.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover Wednesday night heard about a thousand blue-jackets massed on the quarter deck of the Utah singing "Are You Lonesome Tonight?" "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," "Mister Zip," and other popular songs and old favorites. Afterwards, before retiring, they watched motion pictures, which are shown each night on the upper deck.

The heat is increasing as the Utah nears the coast and Wednesday night many of the party have been sleeping on cots on the upper deck. The weather was slightly squally with rain clouds threatening showers.

UNCERTAINTY GROWS

Washington — (AP) — To the uncertainty about the proposed special session, farm relief and tariff revision, has been added the report that Herbert Hoover was not inclined to give his preferences about legislation until after his inauguration.

With the news that he was on his way to Washington it was felt by some perplexed congressmen that a few words from the president-elect would reassure them. These few words may not be said.

Just at the present there are some who favor a special session for farm relief. Others favor a special session, but want the tariff revised. Still others want both considered and finally some want no special session at all. There are also differences of opinion about when the special session should be held. The spring session has been suggested and so has the fall.

Opponents of a special session for farm relief think that a satisfactory farm bill could be passed by this congress. They point out that a bill, conforming to administration ideas, already has been introduced by Senator McNary of Oregon. President-elect Hoover said during the course of the campaign that he would call a special session of congress if some solution of the farm problem were not found before he took office.

Among those who think that a satisfactory farm bill could be passed before March 4 are Speaker Longworth and Representative Tilson, the majority floor leader.

LONGWORTH'S VIEW

Mr. Longworth said he thought it would be a mistake to wait until the next session to do something about the problems of agriculture. He declared that it would take at least six months for a farm board to organize and that delay beyond this session would make relief late for the 1929 crops. He favors a special session, but thinks the autumn would be a good time for it. He said that the tariff did not need a general revision and that the farm, textile and cement schedules are probably all that need any considerable overhauling.

Mr. Tilson's ideas in the main conform to those of Speaker Longworth, only he thinks the spring a good time for the special session.

Mr. Longworth's and Mr. Tilson's views on the time for farm relief are almost diametrically opposite to Senator Enoch C. Hansen, the Idaho senator, a staunch Hoover supporter. During the campaign, he took the attitude that the Republican party promised a special session for farm relief and that the promise should be carried out.

Most of the members of the congress sympathetic with farm relief feel that a farm bill is needed, but others think that the most good would come to agriculture by a radical alteration of tariff schedules.

Wreckers Derail Fast Passenger Train In California

SEVERAL HURT AS SLEEPERS LEAVE TRACKS

All Spikes of Rail Are Pulled and Angle Iron Is Removed, Officers Say

San Bernardino, Cal. (AP)—Sheriff Shea of San Bernardino-co Thursday morning was informed by Santa Fe officials that derailment of "The Missionary," Los Angeles-Chicago flyer at Hesperia, Cal., with serious injury to at least two persons, was the work of train wreckers.

Santa Fe division officials here said reports indicated passengers aboard the train had been "badly shaken up."

Four physicians from San Bernardino and several nurses were started for the scene of the accident by automobile. A special relief train was made up here and left for Hesperia soon after 1:30.

"SPIKES PULLED OUT"
Railroad officials told the sheriff that all the spikes had been removed from one rail and that the angle iron which connected that rail with the next had been unbolted and removed.

Two crowsbars and a wrench, with which the track tampering was declared to have been done, were stolen from the Santa Fe tool house at Hesperia, the officials said.

The "Missionary" hit the weakened track about 1 o'clock in the morning, while traveling at high speed down into the Mojave desert from Cajon pass. The locomotive and several cars left the rails. Three sleepers went over a 25-foot embankment, two of them rolling over on their sides. A fourth sleeper fell on its side athwart the track.

Mrs. F. J. Mackie of Los Angeles, wife of the assistant general manager of the Santa Fe, and W. H. Burbridge of Winslow, Ariz., Santa Fe attorneys, were the first two passengers reported hurt. Mrs. Mackie suffered an injury to her neck, and Burbridge received a hip injury.

Three relief trains, one from San Bernardino, one from Barstow and another from Los Angeles, were dispatched to the scene. Before the trains were made up, physicians and nurses were sent from here and Victorville by motor. Hesperia is 85 miles north of San Bernardino.

HALF DOZEN NEED HELP
E. Farley, a deputy sheriff at Victorville, one of the first to reach the wreck, said that six or eight persons had required medical attention when doctors and nurses arrived. Many other passengers were bruised and shaken, Farley said.

The deputy reported that he had found, in the ditch alongside the rails, the wreckage of the spikes which had been removed from the rail. Santa Fe officials declared they had no clue to the identity of the person or persons who had tampered with the track.

Only the high speed of the train, which was going about 60 miles an hour, prevented the locomotive from plunging over the embankment and taking the entire train with it. Farley said the train crew had told him that the locomotive had been derailed at a spot before the loosened rail fell aside and was pulled from the track only when the cars behind struck the ties.

Coolidge Spends Holidays In Bit Of "Spanish Main"

BY ERNEST LYNN

Sapelo Island, Ga.—The Sea Island section of Georgia, composed of a string of smaller islands just off the coast, where President and Mrs. Coolidge are spending their winter vacation, is a region where a man may take his history along with his hunting and find an amazing abundance of both.

Along moss-hung forest glades of live oak, where Portuguese explorers and Spanish settlers trod in the 16th century, the president will drive and hike. He will view the sites of old Jesuit and Franciscan missions, including even the California missions. He will visit the spot where General Oglethorpe established England's largest colonial fortress, in the ancient town of Frederica on St. Simons Island.

WHERE JOHN WESLEY PREACHED
He will see and most likely stand beneath the oak where John Wesley preached the first Methodist sermon in America. Nearby stands Wesley's old church.

Along the way he will find a veritable apocryphal paradise. The islands abound in deer, wild turkey, pheasant, quail, squirrel, raccoon and possum. And Howard E. Coffin, his host, can even show him where to shoot the rare wild peacock.

In the discovery of this part of the Atlantic coast, the offshore islands naturally felt the feet of explorers before the mainland. The Spaniards named them "The Golden Isles of Guale" (pronounced "Wally" by the English). Properly speaking, they applied the term to four islands, Ocasaw, St. Catherine's, Sapelo and St. Simons; but the name later was applied also to Cumberland and Jekyll, the other large islands in the group. Guale was a province of old Florida, and as such was included in the Spanish Main. Spanish settlements were sprinkled throughout the islands by 1566 and for two centuries they were governed by the sovereigns of Spain.

SPANISH ROUTED FRENCH
Spain's rule was not unchallenged. Rhinault and Laudonniere led the French expedition to the islands, French settlements appeared and French names were applied to the waterways. Spanish wrath finally broke and in 1564 a caravan sailed from Havana and routed the French. Under Spanish rule, Jesuit and Franciscan missions were established throughout "The Golden Isles." The Indian inhabitants were Creeks. Many of them were converted to Christianity, not, however, without the martyrdom of a number of priests.

Natives of the islands can tell stories of pirate activities and it is said that the notorious "Blackbeard" used to visit the islands to bury his treasure. Legend has it that his cache lies on an island adjoining Sapelo.

SPAIN'S HOLD BROKEN
In the early 18th century, about the time of "Blackbeard," English ships began to be felt in the islands. England established the Colony of Georgia in 1733 and three years later Oglethorpe, the founder, built the fortress and town of Frederica on St. Simons Island. Later the English defeated a Spanish landing force near Frederica in one of the decisive of early American engagements, the Battle of Bloody Marsh. This was the battle which is said to have broken Spain's hold.

It went far toward establishing English domination of North America. It is a territory which is almost unknown by the rest of the country that President and Mrs. Coolidge will travel on their winter vacation.

The height of prosperity for "The Golden Isles" were reached in the period between the American Revolution and the Civil War. This was the era of the cotton planter. Here flourished the long staple cotton which became known throughout the world as "Sea Island Cotton." Here was maintained an aristocracy of wealthy planter families which for nearly a century led the south in culture.

But the homes of all these families were burned or shelled during the Civil War. When General Sherman made his famous march through Georgia to the sea, leaving ruin in his wake, he did not neglect Georgia's islands.

It is said that only the Spalding mansion, on Sapelo Island, had enough walls remaining for later repair. Sapelo is now owned by Howard E. Coffin. There he has a 250,000-acre estate and on "Little Sapelo," a game preserve stocked principally with pheasants. Around the walls of the old Spalding home he has built a home which is one of the show places of Georgia.

On St. Simons Island, which is now connected with the Georgia mainland by a causeway leading into Brunswick, Mr. Coffin has built a yacht club on the Frederica river not far from Oglethorpe's ruined fort. He has also built the Cloister hotel, which will house part of the presidential party and a golf course.

St. Simons Island is designed as a playground. Here, where the Battle of Bloody Marsh was fought the vacationist now golfs and fishes, or bathes at Sea Island Beach.

Twenty miles away from St. Simons by motor boat lies Mr. Coffin's Sea Island hunting preserve, a 60,000-acre peninsula. Here Mr. Coffin has erected a hunting lodge and several cabins, a hunter's quarters de luxe so to speak and modern plumbing has intruded in a wilderness abounding in deer, wild turkey and other game. Winter homes of other wealthy men are also found on the islands.

FISHING AND HUNTING
The program to be followed by President and Mrs. Coolidge during their stay very likely will be left up to them, but it is probable that from Sapelo the presidential party will sail to various of the islands on Mr. Coffin's yacht, the Zapala and the president is apt to go fishing at St. Simons and hunting on the Sea Island preserve.

The presidential palate will be regaled with pheasant, venison, quail, wild turkey and other game and if Mr. Coolidge has not already been introduced to roast peacock it is a comparatively safe bet that it will be served.

ICE WAS SAFE SO THEY DECIDED TO ROB BANK
Minneapolis (AP)—John Ziereis wouldn't have fallen back on his alimony payments, three sailors would not have spent Christmas in jail and the Maple Plain, Minn., bank would not have been robbed if the waters of Lake Superior had not frozen over. The three sailors, landmen during the winter, confessed to police Thursday that they held up the bank at Maple Plain last Friday, getting $3,000 in loot. F. J. Monroe and Frank Coleman, claiming to be from Ashland, Wis., signed the confession along with Ziereis.

"If the lake hadn't frozen over," they said, "it would never have happened. But it did and they were out of work, while Ziereis, in addition, needed $500 for his alimony payments."

Last Friday the trio robbed the bank, escaped to Iowa and held a "party" in a Waterloo hotel. Police came just as they decided to make a trip to Germany.

They were brought to Minneapolis Christmas eve. The three spent Christmas day in jail and then decided to confess.

An absolute divorce was granted by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Wednesday afternoon to Allen E. Ruppel, 24, Medina, from his wife, Henrietta E. Ruppel, 23, of Hamilton, Ind.

SCIENTISTS TALK ABOUT INSTINCTS

Social Institutions and Human Beings Have Similar Laws of Growth

BY COLEMAN B. JONES
(Associated Press Science Editor)
New York (AP)—New evidence of the power of the laws of growth, heredity and instinct was presented Thursday to the American association for the Advancement of Science and affiliated societies.

Indications that social institutions, human beings, animals and plants all are subject to similar "laws of growth," which govern their periods of development, maturity and decline, were advanced by Dr. F. Stuart Chapin of the University of Minnesota.

He suggested that if such a "law" could be established for social institutions, it would become possible to predict and control their future development.

His findings, described as "preliminary," were based on a study of changes affecting the commission plan of government, the city manager plan, the government of Minnesota, and the city growth of Detroit, which he compared with changes that occur in animals between birth and death.

Professor Austin Ralph Middleton of the University of Louisville, demonstrated that an hereditary tendency lasts at least as long as the time required to breed it.

Two other investigators, Professor William A. Kepner and J. W. Nittcombe of the University of Virginia, showed that a basic instinct can live on through generation after generation even though the reason for its existence has been removed.

PROTECTING THE PUBLIC INTEREST

In certain localities of the state several municipalities served by the same public service company are discussing the feasibility of joining together for the selection of counsel and for the matter of the presentation to the Railroad Commission of their side of the controversies existing over public utility rates.

This appears to be a sound and practical proposition, the best that can be done under the circumstances, but it also indicates the rather compelling necessity of suitable legislation at the hands of the approaching legislature to cover the situation.

Public utilities and municipalities have long since learned that their interests are somewhat identical, at least with many mutual features, that what hurts one hurts the other; nevertheless, there is often a material difference concerning what amounts to reasonable rates due to the number and variety of factors that must enter the computation involving not only legal problems but engineering problems as well, matters of policy, of reserves, of depreciation, of enlargements and extensions. It may be that the utility is only concerned about obtaining a reasonable income on the money invested, which is its right, yet, in disputes of this character which are natural the contest is not always an equal one. The utility has a trained personnel. It seeks and generally obtains the best talent for each department, legal, engineering, financial and otherwise. It pays its employees salaries in keeping with their ability. Satisfactory results for the public cannot be obtained by treating these matters in a helter-skelter manner or by passing the responsibility to the Railroad Commission upon the theory that it somehow or other will arrive at a just conclusion although it receives no material assistance from the municipalities.

Instead of having various municipalities band together to share the expense of obtaining the necessary talent to adequately and thoroughly present their side of the controversy, had we in the past any statesmanship in the legislature this condition could have been foreseen and provided against. We need first of all provision for an assistant attorney general whose duty it shall be to devote all his time to the interest of all the municipalities of the state and in order to get the requisite ability to take such a position a salary somewhat approaching salaries paid by public utilities in similar situations must be forthcoming. That would be true economy in the long run. It is in the matter of the direction of its proceedings before the Railroad Commission that municipalities have been the lamest. But in the way suggested the municipalities would be represented, as is vitally necessary, by a trained specialist and the expense, instead of being borne by a few here or there, would be trivial when borne by all the municipalities of the state. A government so fortified, clearly understanding and appreciating its rights and with a fixed and definite program, would earn the respect of its people.

The problem concerning rates is not one that may be intelligently passed upon by the man in the street however carefully he may study the subject. The situation is probably never the same with any two public service corporations in the state. It is a problem for auditors and engineers guided carefully by skilled legal minds so as to clear the reefs and shoals of legal controversy to the end that there may be "rendered unto Caesar those things that are Caesar's" but that there shall be kept for the people the rights that inherently belong to them.

THE DEADLIEST GAS

A new and better poison gas is announced. It is so poisonous that neither the chemists nor the government like to talk much about it. The name doesn't matter. It's one of the cyanides, which were already deadly enough for any ordinary purpose. One of those gases, to the extent of several hundred tons, made during the war but never shipped to Europe, was hauled from the interior to the eastern seaboard after the armistice, loaded on a ship and dumped into the middle of the Atlantic, for fear somebody, somewhere, sometime, might get a sniff of it by accident. That shipment could have turned over 10 biggest cities into graveyards.

The new gas is so terrible that, a chemist says, it "would destroy armies as a man might snuff out a candle." It always kills. The slightest quantity will kill. There is no remedy. Its use in a future war would probably eliminate other weapons. Cannon and machine guns would be pitifully inferior. It would be cheaper to destroy armies with gas. Also the civilian populations behind the armies.

The chemist revealing this horror says he believes the nations will not use it—that they "will want something that will stop armies for a time, but not kill them."

Is he right about that? Do not armies always want to kill enemies? And will they not kill them in the next war, as they did in the last, by the most effective means they possess?

Is there any way to prevent wholesale destruction, without mercy or hope, except by preventing that "next war?"

A SENSIBLE JUDGE

A wise judge knows the difference between real thieves and amateurs. Recently two men, out of work and unable to find employment in spite of sincere efforts, agreed to steal some lumber from a neighboring barn, with the intention of selling it. Their methods were clumsy. A policeman saw and arrested them, charged them with attempted burglary, and took them to court. When their cases were investigated, it was found that the men had no previous bad record, that they had honestly tried to get work, and that their families were without food and other necessities.

The judge dug into his own pocket for temporary relief of their distress. Then he got them both jobs and made arrangements with a baking company to furnish them with free bread for a while.

"I have no use for a thief, and I enjoy sending crooks to jail," said the judge, "but from the investigation of your cases I am more than convinced that neither of you is a thief."

"I can not find it in my heart to send you to prison, knowing that if I were in your place I might do the same thing. Your cases are continued for a year. When you appear in court at that time I will see if you have been worthy of the chance to make good."

Here is sentiment balanced with judgment and sense, justice tempered with mercy. It is quite possible, too, that the judge saved these two first offenders from becoming second offenders and confirmed criminals. If so, he has protected society as well as saved the men.

CLEARANCE FOR SMUGGLERS

Canada has agreed to a conference with the United States to revise the anti-smuggling treaty of 1924. Prohibition enforcement depends considerably on this conference.

The principal question is whether the Canadian government will renounce the pleasant and profitable practice of issuing clearance papers to vessels with cargoes of booze bound ostensibly for Europe or South America or Australia, then touching accidentally the United States—which is often just across the river—and leaving their cargoes on our soil.

Some Americans seem to think this a very neighborly thing to do. Others are highly indignant. At any rate, law is law and smuggling is smuggling, and aiding and abetting such traffic ought to be beneath the dignity of so good a neighbor as the Dominion next door.

Teacher: "Johnny, can you tell me what a hypocrite is?"
Johnny: "Yes, ma'am. It's a boy what comes to school with a smile on his face."

It was after the opera. The expensively dressed woman approached the broad shouldered man. "If I am not mistaken," she said, "I have the honor of speaking to the renowned basso, haven't I?"

He felt flattered. "And what can I do for you, madame?" he asked.
"I can't find my car," she answered pleasantly. "Would you be so kind as to call out 'Charlie' at the top of your voice?"

"Doesn't Joe ever get tired of his wife's continued sulking?"
"I think not. He says when she's good natured she sings."

A city preacher was explaining to his congregation the great unhappiness caused by divorce, and urged husbands to be more attentive to their wives, to kiss them more frequently.

Arriving home, one of the husbands, who evidently had chosen to go to church rather than be helpful in many domestic problems, rushed into the kitchen where his wife was laboring, and kissed her. Breaking into tears, she cried, "The baby is sick, the furnace fire is out, the plumbing leaking, and now you come home drunk. It's too much."

It isn't necessary to say to the bride "with all my worldly goods I thee endow." She'll get 'em, if any.

THE HUDSON BILL
One of the best things that the next Congress could do would be to toss in the wastebasket the Hudson bill for federal censorship and control of motion pictures. This bill, said to be the most drastic of its kind yet drawn up, will be submitted with the backing of a large number of reform organizations.

The movies, Heaven knows, are sadly in need of improvement; but the improvement they need is not the kind that can be secured by federal law. In the matter of common decency and morality we are already protected by state and city laws; and the movie's banality, shoddiness, pretensions and extreme bad taste are not matters that any censor can remedy.

This Hudson bill looks to us like an excellent thing for Congress to ignore.

Great Britain now has one car to every 41 persons; while France has only one to 127 people.

FOOD ALLERGY IS A MYSTERY

Find the woman, says the French detective maxim, and one gathers from the fiction that the French detective could never carry on without a mysterious, elusive woman in the background. The yarn would seem as dull as a vaudeville bill written by a black-face artist imitating Al Jolson singing Old Black Sun or whatever it is.

The intriguing woman of the French mystery story is no more so than the food protein the doctor has to search for in numerous cases of allergy or anaphylaxis, as we glibly call what plain folk will probably understand better as idiosyncrasy. Just to give you an idea of how intriguing it is, let me run over some of the more or less familiar forms which food allergy manifests itself, but remember you can't draw any immediate conclusions about the matter if you happen to be subject to any of the troubles I mention. Of course food allergy is not the sole cause of any of these troubles; it is the cause in only a minority of cases. In a recent scientific study of food allergy by Albert H. Rowe, M. D., an Oakland expert, the following conditions are treated as allergic: Certain cases of abdominal pain, colic, gastric and intestinal distress, distension, nausea, vomiting, with constipation or diarrhea, such as too often purport to be "ptomaine poisoning"; urticaria (hives); angioneurotic edema (giant hives); obstinate or recurring dermatitis (eczema); migraine (periodic sick headache); bronchial asthma; spurious "hay fever" in and out of season; spurious "sinus trouble"; irritable bladder; fever in children, less frequently in adults; irregular and painful menstruation; low blood pressure.

The list gives a fair idea of the latitude of food allergy, and likewise it offers every reader so inclined the chance to make a fool of himself if he happens to be subject to any trouble mentioned. Nothing could be more foolish than betting that one's complaint is of such origin.

In the present state of knowledge it is difficult enough for the physician who has made a special study of allergy to diagnose the condition in any case.

One means the medical detective employs to elicit testimony when his suspicion is aroused, is the skin scratch test—a wee scratch is made on the cleaned skin, and a minute quantity of the suspected food substance applied. If the patient is sensitized to the particular food substance a characteristic hive-like reaction appears at the site of the scratch. If the patient is normal in reaction to the particular food substance, no reaction appears. Of course this involves a good deal of futile fishing, but the test gives no inconvenience to the patient and a dozen different food substances may be tried out in simultaneous tests. So the method is at least worth while if the patient is discouraged or skeptical about the nature of the trouble.

Dr. Rowe finds that wheat, eggs, milk, chocolate, tomato, cabbage, orange and potato are the foods most commonly responsible for the allergic manifestations listed. If it is fair for me to intrude, I may say that I receive from readers more complaints that seem to incriminate tomato as the cause of their troubles than of all other foods. Incidentally we must credit Dr. Rowe, a Californian, with courage; he tells the world that sometimes orange juices raises havoc!

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
We Take a Bow
Your articles are always of interest to me, without making me feel as though I have all the ailments I read about.—(A. B. L.)

ANS.—I am proud to know that I do feel that there is too much at leged "health" stuff printed and that is calculated to make folks sick.

Yo Ho for a Parcel of Cheese
Here is another recipe for good old cottage (Dutch) cheese this one by an old printer. I am not sure whether I ought to let this printer propagate his recipe—my experience is that printers are prone to do terrible things to recipes. However, this time we can reverse the table if we wish, so I'll let it go through in some fashion or other:

Use any quantity of clabbered milk. Set on warm stove where it should simmer till hot all through and the curd breaks loose from the whey. This may be hastened by cutting into small cubes with a spatula. If you use a small quantity of milk, use a double boiler, so the milk will not get too hot. Do not let the milk boil, as that toughens the curd. Dump the hot milk and curd into a fine mesh strainer. Work with a spoon or wooden butter ladle, till the whey is all worked out. Unnecessary to hang up in drain cloth. Get the whey all out of the curd now while it is still warm. Then while curd is still warm season with butter, salt and pepper and if you wish, add a little finely chopped pimento or paprika. Mix thoroughly, and serve any time. Hot cakes is my favorite way.—(C. M. B.)

Calcium Lactate for Allergy
My husband has suffered greatly from bronchial asthma. Doctor gave ultra-violet light treatments, different prescriptions, and chlorine gas inhalations, but with no result. Then my husband read your suggestion of calcium lactate. He has had remarkable relief. The calcium lactate tablets seem to prevent the attacks. He has taken them for six weeks now. How long can he take them? We had the sputum examined by the board of health and the report was negative—we were afraid of consumption.—(Mrs. E. G. W.)

ANS.—So long as the calcium lactate doesn't seem to irritate the stomach it may be taken indefinitely. It is not unreasonable to think the calcium lactate may really do good in cases of asthma, hives, angioneurotic edema, migraine, etc. Ultra-violet light on the naked skin may help in any such case, too. Sunlight, if available, is better than any artificial source. Your husband might do well to take one or two doses of plain cod liver oil (no modified stuff), say a spoonful daily.

Washington, D. C.—Police here must figuratively "stay in their own back yard." U. S. See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—And now they would put the pushcarts from the streets of New York.

It seems that they're unhygienic, dirty, interfere with traffic and bother the street cleaning department.

Which, for all we know, may be true. But once the pushcarts are gone I, for one, don't care to visit the East Side very often. If pushcarts are dirty it is equally true that they are picturesque, colorful and even poetic. Yes, they're even symbolic of the ghetto. At this moment the Department of Health is swinging into action and one of these days the glamorous marts of the East Side streets may be no more.

Orchid Street is both king and queen of the pushcart lanes of the ghetto.

In Orchid street, the peddlers squabble for a half inch of space. Their carts are piled high with all the rainbow's hues. There are the fresh greens of vegetables and the reds, yellows and oranges of fruits; there are the myriad-tinted shawls and dresses and shirts; there are the little balls of cheap neckties; the battered collection of toys and dolls; there are the cries of the peddlers and the murmur of the thousands of traders who clutter the streets; there is the pawing and the haggling and the sound of bargaining; there are the peoples of the earth in native costume; there are dirty children and clean children and women with bright shawls and ragged shawls, women with market baskets and women with bundles. It is all a grand and thrifty cluster of humanity, such as can be found only in Manhattan's East Side.

It seems a bit too bad that such color must go hand in hand with dirt—or what the Health Department prefers to call "filth." But so it has ever been, whether in the bazars of Cairo, the native quarter of Algiers, the beggars' market of Paris or the pushcart belt of Orchard-st.

Hester Street is the pushcart street of tradition.

Orchard street may be the hub, but Hester street has the history, the antiquity and even the reputation. Hester street is a name familiar around the world. It boasted a street market back in 1886 when some shrewd peddler backed his cart against the curb and set up business. Today Hester street is all but abandoned. Only a few stragglers may be found there today.

Grand street specializes in pushcart jewelry, silk stockings and undergarments. Upper Park-ave has suddenly been invaded by vegetable and fruit traders. Lower Delancey-st has the fish stalls.

But the most picturesque of all is the little section in and around the Market Slip, near East River.

Here the city's barker finds its most primitive beginnings. Anyone with a baby buggy—and who hasn't a baby buggy on the East Side?—can set up business. Anyone with a baby buggy and a few shoestrings can start right in from the very bottom. Around the Market Slip the merchants haven't reached the degree of prosperity that affords a pushcart. Each morning they fill the family baby buggy with frying pans and what not and start for their places of business.

They tell me that there is one old fellow, with snow-white beard, who hasn't even got a baby buggy, and rents one for five cents a day.

An ironic spectator waved him forward and called out:

"Go on, kid. You're headed in the right direction. The others all went that way."

Groping among old memories, John Weltmer recalled that his father as county clerk of Brown county signed a big issue of county bonds in 1870 as local contribution to the building of what John called the "Saint Joe and Denver City" railway. It is now the Grand Island.

"And just 30 years later, as county clerk, I cancelled those bonds," he added.

John is so much of an oracle on Kansas politics that he thought it unportsmanlike to bet on the state last November until he got the Smith supporter challenging him also to bet on New York. Now he wears a new, leather brimmed cap on his elevator job.

"My New York hat," he chuckled, "and as it cost only $1.95 on a $2 bet, I'm in a nicker cash to boot."

KANSAS CITY IN BATTLE AGAINST LIQUOR DEALERS

Movement Starts After Woman Smashes Up Saloon With an Ax

Kansas City—(AP)—A drive against liquor dealers in Kansas City is in full swing because a modern woman took a leaf from the book of the militant Carrie Nation of a quarter century ago.

Wielding an ax, the favorite weapon of the Kansas crusader, Mrs. Maude Wilson smashed a saloon where she said her daughter and husband had purchased liquor. Ministers and other citizens immediately took up the crusade she had no desire to carry on, and because of their clamor Mrs. Wilson was summoned before a grand jury to tell what she knew about policemen going to the saloon.

Instead of finding peace after putting away the ax, she was made ill by the excitement that followed. When she recovered sufficiently she was taken to various churches to receive the praise of the congregations.

The Carrie Nation of 25 years ago, on the other hand, was always calm after she had smashed a saloon, although she frequently found herself in jail for destroying property or disturbing the peace.

In Kansas was her zone of operations, but she did make several forays into the neighboring state of L. Bourl, and once she was arrested in the city where she has been emulated by Mrs. Wilson.

In Kansas City, in a wet state, was the principal source of alcoholic beverages consumed in Kansas, the liquor pouring lawfully into a dry state as an article of interstate commerce.

Mrs. Nation once was arrested in Kansas City on a charge of obstructing a sidewalk and fined $500. The judge granted a stay of the fine on condition she return to Kansas.

Mrs. Nation called saloon keepers "poor, silly boys, who don't know how the devil has blinded them."

"I am not mad at you, boys," she said, when she walked into a saloon at Topeka, not far from the Kansas capitol. "I like you boys. Yes, I do. Needn't laugh. If you get sick, all you have to do is tell Mother Nation and she'll nurse you. But, boys, you must get out of this business. If you don't—I give you fair warning now—I'll be around in a few days and break up your wicked shop."

The "boys" did not close the shop, so she did it herself—with her hatchet. Her friends paid her fine and she was free again—to smash more saloons.

Mrs. Nation kept fighting for the dry cause until she died June 9, 1917. It was her own wish that this be her epitaph:

"She hath done what she could."

Many believe Mrs. Nation was the first saloon smasher, but it is recorded—also in Kansas—that six women raided a saloon in Mound City December 10, 1861, two decades before Kansas had a prohibition law and exactly 67 years before Mrs. Wilson turned for enforcement of prohibition to the weapon Mrs. Nation took up so effectively in 1900.

Modern Carrie Nation

A dry crusade is under way in Kansas City because Mrs. Maude Wilson (upper right) smashed with an ax a saloon. Inspired by sight of the battered bar, (upper left), ministers are calling attention to violation of prohibition laws from the pulpit, with signs such as that shown below. All this is taking place in a city from which Carrie A. Nation (lower right) was driven back to Kansas a quarter of a century ago.

197 LUMBER MILLS IN STATE TWO YEARS AGO

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C.—Wisconsin had 197 lumber mills in operation in 1927 with a total production of 819,507 thousand feet, board measure, the Department of Commerce has announced. This is a decrease of 26 mills compared with the number in operation during 1926.

For the entire United States 13,755 lumber mills were in operation turning out 34,529,450 thousand feet of lumber.

Of the 46 states reporting the production of lumber for 1927, 31 show decreases and 15 increases as compared with the output for 1926, the greatest amount of decrease being indicated for Louisiana. Ten states show a production of more than 1,000,000 thousand feet for 1927.

Seven kinds of wood contributed more than 1,000,000 thousand feet each to the total cut for each of the two years. The dominating woods, as for previous years, are yellow pine and Douglas fir, which contributed 31.5 per cent and 24.5 per cent, respectively, of the total production for 1927, as against 31.8 per cent and 23.8 per cent, respectively, of that for 1926. All of the seven woods of chief importance show decreases for 1927 as compared with 1926, the largest decrease being chosen for Douglas fir.

CAN'T CARRY LOADED GUNS IN AUTOMOBILES

Madison—(AP)—A boy's death from a rifle which had been carried in a car in an illegal manner and arrest of several hunters within a week for that offense. Thursday brought a warning from the conservation commission to hunters that it is against the law to carry loaded guns in cars. Guns must be "knocked down" or unloaded and in carrying cases.

An 8 year old boy hailed a passing motorist. When he stepped from the running board a rifle on the floor of the car was accidentally discharged. The bullet entered the lad's neck and he died shortly afterwards.

"This law is designed as much for the protection of the hunter as for the protection of game."

NEW FASHIONS A PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN BEAUTY HINTS

THIS AND THAT BY THE AUTHOR MISS SUMNER

HERE'S a picture of the three little kids of church organist Leigh-Manuel whose wife helped him cope with a second wife she believed would be good for hubby's soul. The picture of the three cute kids is titled "Innocent Victims of Miss Love."

Sometimes one wonders how much real worth is in this eternal argument about the sin of disrupting homes "for the baby's sake." Sometimes one believes the babies better off after rather than before such homes on the sand are disrupted. Still, who supports the three babies now that papa's gone?

KRESGE HAD THREE
Sebastian Kresge, 60, has just married his third wife. She is 24. She is preceded by two former wives who divorced him. Number One and her five children got about $35,000,000 in settlement, and Number Two got over $10,000,000. Here seems to be evidence that money helped make divorce; on the other hand, the man whom his wives called "pouty" and "disagreeable" might have been the very same man in the divorce court if he hadn't had a cent.

SPEEDED UP
Still speaking of divorce, Vladimir Chukhnovski was married in Lenin-grad at noon, quarreled with his wife over where they should live from then on till 12:20, and got his divorce at 12:25. You just "signify your intention" in that country. Probably as well it did work that way. In this country they'd have quarreled for months, made only misery for themselves and everybody else, spent much money for a divorce, with the same result as the hurry-up one.

TRUE ENOUGH
That gives us food for thought. Sure enough, more divorces are granted the well-to-do than the poor—I guess—or is it only the divorces of the well-to-do which attract attention? Do the poor stick because they have to, not having the price of a divorce, nor a housekeeper to take the wife's place, and the woman knowing that she won't economically better herself much by scrubbing floors?

"IDIOT" WOMEN
Cigarettes are "making idiots out of women," according to one of the W. C. T. U. ladies of Kansas. They are working for the return of the anti-cigarette law in their state.

It's rather hard to argue with the lady without knowing her definition of "idiot." One man's "idiot" is another man's idea of perfection. It's hard to see that women have changed very much since the cigarette makers dared begin publicly advertising to them and thereby indicating the vast number of them as customers.

When the ice box is large enough, store fresh vegetables in it until ready for cooking. You will be surprised how much fresher and better flavored beans will be when cooked, after they have been chilled. Little of the moisture is lost when vegetables are stored in cold places.

British Satirist Writes On Abasement Of Men

EDITOR'S NOTE: A European would let his lady "trip head over heels downstairs" before he would kneel to do up her shoe in public, writes Beverly Nichols, youthful English satirist who now is editor of The American Sketch, in the article below. He finds women dominating American life.

But—"Why NOT Tie a Lady's Shoe?" asks Charles Hanson Towne, noted American editor and writer, in another article appearing tomorrow which praises the "sweet bondage" in which our men are held.

BY BEVERLY NICHOLS
We were sitting in the lounge of a restaurant, waiting for two women who were late. My friend had just asked me, in a casual way, what was the most amazing sight I had ever seen in the world. I closed my eyes and thought of all sorts of things. Niagara Falls, a water spout in the South Seas, a fighting kangaroo in the Australian bush, Aimee, Semple McPherson careening across her Los Angeles stage. Which was the most extraordinary? I was impossible to say. I opened my eyes again. And then I said, "I've got it." For on the other side of the hall was a sight far more amazing than any of these things.

A man was kneeling down, doing up a woman's shoe.

TWO INTERPRETATIONS

To me, that sight beat them all. My friend told me it was just politeness. To me it was a revelation of sex relationships.

A European would as soon do a woman's shoe in public as sit on the top of her head. He might do it up (or take it off) in private. That is another matter. But in public he would either call a waiter, or tell the woman to go and do it herself, or let her trip head over heels downstairs.

What is the reason for this public abasement? I could swear that it was a manifestation of the prevalent inferiority complex in the American husband. He is taught, from boyhood, that women are mysterious, fragile creatures, whom he must reverence as he would never reverence a man. A brief acquaintance with life teaches him that women are neither mysterious nor fragile. But this knowledge is only a conscious knowledge. In the back of his subconscious mind, the old illusion persists. Women, to him, are never quite human. He is afraid of them. That is why he does up their shoes. And since he is perfectly aware that all the male onlookers see nothing unnatural in the procedure, he doesn't even feel embarrassed.

I believe that American women are instinctively aware of this strange mental attitude. They cunningly act as if they were. They do everything in their power to encourage it. As debutantes they behave as if they were members of a superior race. They consider it their divine right to be late on all occasions. They are infernally rude, and they never apologize for their rudeness.

He wrote his first novel at eighteen. Seven years later he did his autobiography, "Twenty-Five," achieving fame as a satirist. Plays, essays and dramatic criticisms are his. He even has collaborated in the production of operas. And now Beverly Nichols has come to this native England to this country to write of America and Americans with a satire which, he says, will be "more like surgery than bludgeoning."

BASEBALL VETS HONOR WOMAN LOYAL TO TEAM

Williamsport, Pa., (AP)— Women were not in great numbers at baseball games back in the 'nineties when men ate peanuts with one hand and twirled their sideburns with the other. There was one, however, who did not miss a single local game in the year of 1891.

She seemed to have a deep love for the game. As a matter of fact, she knew the difference between an error and a base hit.

Mrs. Minnie Willis is the woman. Now at 83 years old, she was the guest of honor at a banquet given here by 40 players who figured prominently in the games of three decades or more ago.

They accept endless numbers of presents without a "thank you" or "leave it to the wife."

As matrons they are supreme in their own homes. Ask an American husband if he ever orders his own dinner and he will look at you as if you had suggested something improper. Ask him if he ever chose the pictures in his study and he will consider you mad. Why? Very few women know anything about food, and even fewer know anything about pictures. But always in the American home it's a question of "I leave those things to the wife."

The inferiority complex is so deeply rooted that a man never even asks himself why he is allowing somebody else to live the better part of his life—the leisure hours.

As mothers, the American women instill these ideas with a fierce intensity in their daughters. And as old women, when their power of physical attraction is waning, they form armies, gather together in clubs, issue edicts and generally succeed in twisting the whole fabric of society to their own ends.

I wish that the American boy would heed a little Freud along with his Zane Grey. It would unravel a great many skeins that are tangled in his head.

Add one tablespoon of chili sauce to meat loaves, hash, vegetable soup, macaroni, macaroni and cheese, sandwich fillings and cheese mixtures. The pungent flavor is most desirable.

WINTER SPORTS GIRLS AIM AT LANKY LINES

BY DIANA MERWIN
(Associated Press Fashion Editor, Paris)—This year's model for the winter sports girl is as long and thin as a string bean. She has decided characteristics of her own, such as a tiny head, topped with a small beret and long, lanky wool-clad legs.

Unless there is a beret in the winter sport ensemble it is not a sartorial success by latest French standards. Even for tobogganing down Main street, long dark trousers tucked into the shoes lumberjack fashion and a beret are required.

The town order of thinly veiled legs and muffled throat is reversed for winter sport togs. This winter's sports girl muffles her legs and bares her throat as much as the cold and her bronchial tubes will allow.

The beret may not cover the tips of her ears, but her trousers will be long enough to double gracefully over the tops of her shoes.

One of the novelties is the accessory set of knitted wool scarf, mittens, socks and commodious handbag in the red, white and blue design of last spring's flag patterns.

The slimmest of the slim girls will wear narrow belts at a normal waistline. The others will go in for woolen windbreakers and unbelted pullovers. Many a winter sport outfit has a basic suit of black with a black wool beret, and scarf mittens, socks and pullover of plain white wool.

ENSEMBLE THEME IN ACCESSORIES

Paris accessories are distinctive. (1) Worth fashions a yellow and black sports kerchief. (2) A Jenny afternoon or dinner bracelet is of gold metal handsomely wrought and studded with lapis lazuli. (3) An off-white georgette collar and tie give a charming lingerie touch of Redfern green velvet frock. (4) One of Jean Patou's black reindeer "pochettes" has an artistic fastening of onyx and circles of brilliants. (5) A pair of Juliette black satin pumps has a modernistic trim, silver edged. (6) Polka dots of velvet, picked out in strass, decorate the chiffon scarf, suede gloves of a new accessory-ensemble from Alexandrine. There is a suede bag included in the ensemble.

BY ROSETTE

PARIS—The most intricate and intrinsic part of woman's dress is undoubtedly the accessories she is called upon to wear.

Gone are the happy days when bags and shoes were about the only details we really had to worry about. Now there are scarves, button holes, jewelry, without counting handkerchiefs, perfume and other oddments carried in a woman's bag.

Alexandrine, the renowned glove creator of the Champs Elysees, has created "ensembles" consisting of gloves, bags and scarf for sports, afternoon and informal evening wear. Most of her sports ensembles are made of Rodier materials exclusively reserved to her and nowhere else can you find such a wealth of design, coloring and chic in the realm of accessories.

PATTERNS MODERNISTIC

For the severely tailored sports suit she shows scarves and bags of beautiful Rodier jerseys in unusual modernistic patterns almost impossible to describe. Blue and white, gray and white, browns, beiges or mixtures of red, black and gray or beige are among the predominating color schemes. The scarves are about a yard long, most of them cut on the bias, and the bags to match are very somber in design but bearing the finished look of all well-made articles. Gloves for morning wear are always practical, the sacque or one-button style being equally good, but hand-stitched always.

It is in her afternoon ensembles that Alexandrine excels and nothing more delicately feminine could be found than her scarves of three shades of taffetas with deft incrustations or her models made of two different kinds of gold lame mixed with red and black crepe de chine. She also has an extensive collection of velvet handkerchiefs points in unusual colorings.

The smartest wear in bags for afternoon is undoubtedly the black suede with an ornate jeweled clasp or ornament. They are inclined to be smaller than last year's and while the small pouch shape is fashionable the medium sized envelope bag is considered very smart. There are also some very smart suede bags in grey and beige but for the smart woman nothing equals a black afternoon bag, as she usually wears black shoes.

When a jeweled vanity-case is not carried Paris has decreed that the newest evening bag should be made of crepe de chine printed in an all-over design, this design being picked out in gold or silver thread or even both to lend it the necessary ornate look. The latest idea is to use gold and silver cord in place of the usual straps and the newest bag frames have a double loop through which this cord is passed.

SHOES MORE SEVERE

Stress jewelry has replaced the ubiquitous pearl necklace, but good taste demands that the workmanship be good. Shoes for day wear have assumed a much more severe character than last year. The tie boxcall shoe for sports wear or the two-strap style prevalent. The choice in afternoon shoes is the more or less intricately worked opera pump. Or a great range of fancy sandals, either of black patent leather or a combination of some reptile skin and the patent.

"Pablo Valencia!" Bob snorted. "I know," Tony grinned apologetically. "It does sound weird. It seems that this Pablo boy was a reincarnation of Valentino, with a Spanish accent. The way Crystal described him, any girl would leave him if he crooked his finger, and I'm afraid—" she paused ruefully—"that he crooked it, drat him! Or bless him, as the case may be."

"You don't think—" Faith questioned fearfully. "Blessed if I don't," Tony was near to tears. "According to Crystal, this Pablo riot is a painter, a genius no less, and Crystal simply didn't have the heart to pelt wet blankets on her girlish dreams! Besides, she kept insisting that she wouldn't marry him. It's funny she didn't tell me she was going to do it after all—unless—Again that ominous pause."

"Did she consider the alternative?" Bob asked, flushing darkly. "There was some talk of marrying him—or else," Tony admitted. "But I honestly don't think Crystal would have the courage to jump over the moon, as we kids call it. Do you, Faith?"

"I don't know," Faith moaned. "All I know is she was in terrible trouble last night."

"That's the phone," Bob shouted. "Get that Crystal!"

Faith and Tony waited until Bob came back, his eyes and mouth grim. "That was old Lincoln Pruitt," he said angrily. "Called me up to explain why he fired Crystal this morning. Said he didn't want me to misunderstand—valued my friendship and all that rot."

"Fired Crystal?" Tony and Faith exclaimed in unison. Then as Faith burst into tears, Tony sprang to her feet, her hands clenched. "The old beast!" she cried indignantly. "Mile Dumont ribbed him up to this, to get even. Oh, I haven't time to explain now. Poor Crys! Losing her job must have been the last straw! I know she'd been heartbroken over having to give Pablo up, and she must have thought that with her job gone and her sweetheart, too, she simply couldn't live. Oh, I don't think she committed suicide." Tony hastened to reassure Faith. "She took clothes didn't she? I think she just decided that it didn't matter what became of her and she might as well have love. And I'll hate you both if you blame her too much!" she added vehemently, her blue eyes flashing fire.

"Whoa, Tony! No one's blaming her," Bob reasoned. "We don't even know what she's done yet. We may get a telegram any minute announcing that she's Senora Valencia. . . . Do you know where he lived, Tony?"

"Only vaguely," Tony answered, ashamed of her outburst. "As I said, I gathered that he was living in the country somewhere near the Jonson farm. I know she went out on the interurban to meet him—to their 'secret trysting place,' as she called it. She did so enjoy keeping him all to herself and mysterious."

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tinies, when they'd eaten all the canned they could, heard Jack Frost call. "Come here, you little fellows! I've a dandy plan in mind. I'm very sure that all of you will do whatever you can do to please your old friend, Santa. Here's a hunch that's very kind."

"You bet!" cried Scooty. "We are game. Why, really it would be a shame if Santa Claus came sailing back and found things in a mess."

Then to the rest he cried, "Don't shrink. Instead, let's all sail in and work. We'll have to rush, 'cause he'll be coming back here soon, I guess."

"Oh, no he won't," Jack Frost

How To Play Bridge

BY Milton C. Work

Today we give Deal B and four questions concerning it.

QUESTION No. 5. What should the bidding be at Auction Bridge?

QUESTION No. 6. What should the bidding be at Contract Bridge?

QUESTION No. 7. What card should win the first trick?

QUESTION No. 8. What card should be led to trick 3?

THE ANSWERS

5. At Auction Bridge the bidding should be: South one Club, West one Heart, which would obtain the contract. West has the strength to justify an informative double, but with five honors and an assured game in Hearts, if East renders the least assistance, the bid is apt to work better than double.

6. At Contract Bridge South would bid one Club and West four Hearts which would obtain the contract. West's four is an overbid in the sense that, without assistance from East he may lose more than three tricks; but it takes less assistance in the East hand to make

BE FRIENDLY TO EVERYBODY, INDIAN URGES

Such Action Will Accomplish What League of Nations Is Trying to Do

Kaukauna—If the rising generation is taught to think of all people in the world as brethren, boys will accomplish what the League of Nations is now trying to do, establish a friendly feeling between the nations of the world, Appadurai Aaron, a Y. M. C. A. secretary in Ootacumund, South India, predicted in his talk at the Rotary club meeting Wednesday noon in Legion hall. He urged the American boys to set the pace in the movement as they have the advantage of having "organized service." The Indian native gave his speech to a large number of Rotarians and boys who attended the meeting. He was introduced by H. S. Cooke.

Mr. Aaron told of the differences in boy life in America and in India. He stated that most of their national games are played in the moonlight because of the extreme heat during the day. The moonlight is so bright that one can read a newspaper in it, he stated. The reasons that boys of different countries play such different games is because the surroundings are different, he said. He told of the first boy scout movement in India and said that it was so slow in starting because the natives believed that it was a "military movement" instead of a "charitable building organization." The boy scout movement in India is a wonderful opportunity because it brings into the country the idea of service. This does much to help the present condition of the country in regards to illiteracy, sanitation and general living conditions," he said. The first thing a boy scout is taught in India is to regard all people as brethren, and this in turn is taught to all the natives. The scouts teach whole villages to read and write. Thus the living conditions are bettered as the government can send out literature on economical uplift, he pointed out.

"The needs the service on boys for the government is not organized as it is in America," he said. "When the boys are grown with the idea of service all the world will regard each other as brethren, the world will truly become a Kingdom of God."

Mr. Aaron spoke in his native language, sang a song in his own language and related some of the experiences of Indian life. He said that government officials used the English language as first language. When a native entered high school he took up English as the American high school boy takes up Latin, he said. Education in India is not free as it is in America.

Vike Cagers In Preliminary Game With Green Bay Team

CONTEST WILL BE PLAYED THURSDAY AT BAY Y. M. C. A.

Coach Denney Taking Entire Squad North on Prelim Jaunt

Green Bay—The Y. M. C. A. basketball team will again be seen in action here Thursday, Dec. 27, when it plays the strong Lawrence college varsity. This will be the first appearance of the Vikings in Green Bay against a local team, although two years ago they played the Y. M. C. A. college of Chicago in an exhibition game at the "Y. M." building.

Lawrence can be depended upon to come here with a real team. It will be an outfit of fifteen men—the pick of the entire school—who are training and work out twice every day to test their skill and endurance against other colleges, such as Ripon, Carleton, Beloit, Marquette, Lombard, Coe, Knox, Beloit and others.

The game has been scheduled in continuing the policy of the local Y. M. C. A. to schedule strong, attractive teams for its 1929 season. The "Y" squad has so far lost three games, two of them by only one point and one by three points, and has won one game by a 48 to 25 margin. The team was defeated by Niagara in its first game by three points in a game which saw-sawed from start to finish. The Indians next won from Green Bay 44 to 35, in one of the best and most thrilling games ever played on a local floor. Oshkosh normal also won a 26 to 25 victory over the "Y" men, although the visitors were badly outplayed, but last Wednesday the Green Bay boys came back with a revenge 43 to 25 trouncing over the Indians. This game was not as one-sided as it appeared, for it was not until the last five minutes that the "Y" men won out by means of their endurance and superior number of substitutes.

Lawrence college has the advantage in numbers, and also in the total practice periods possible for the team. The Vikings have been working out once and sometimes twice daily, while such a procedure is impossible for the "Y. M." squad. The men who will see action against Lawrence are Boskams, captain, and Schart, centers; Osmond, Gass, Maes, Gaffney and Wahl, forwards; Baeb, Hennig, Gerdes and Schauer, guards.

Coach Denney of Lawrence has not announced his starting lineup, but he will probably use all of his veteran varsity material. Capt. Slavik is sure to see action at forward, while at center Laird, Schnell or Ellis may get the call. Jackola is a flashy blonde forward who may get into action, and Rummel, St. Mitchell, Pierce and Voelckers will also probably see service.

Denney is bringing his star sophomore flash, Hayward Biggers, up to give him his first trial at varsity competition against the Y. M. C. A. team. Biggers was a star forward at Elgin high school two teams ago, and burned up the undefeated Lawrence front team last season.

Thursday's game is scheduled to start at 7:30 o'clock.

NOTHING ELSE TO PLAY

One hundred contests for varsity athletic teams appear on the 1929 Illinois schedule. The schedule includes wrestling, swimming, track, gym, fencing, baseball, basketball and football.

Touchdowns On Kick-off Still Numerous On Grid

BY BOB MATHERNE
IF statistical reports from 60 colleges whose football teams are ranked as of national or sectional importance can be taken as a fair basis for a record of the leading scoring plays of the year, it is plain that more touchdowns were made from running back kickoffs in 1928 than in many previous seasons. At least, more than in 1926 and 1927.

ORGANIZE LADIES BOWLING LEAGUE

Four Valley Cities to Be Represented by Two Teams Each

A new ladies bowling league has been organized by a group of leading feminine bowlers representing Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah and Appleton, according to recent announcement. There will be two teams from each city, and games will be rolled two Sundays a month, all teams bowling on the same alleys.

Neenah will be hostess on the opening day, Jan. 6. Because there are only six alleys available the first shift will start its work at 1 o'clock, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac teams being on the runways; Neenah and Appleton will be on the second shift at 3 o'clock.

The two teams representing Appleton are Heckert Shoes, Leola Dunn, captain, and Hopfensperger Sausages with Ellen Dunn, captain.

Officers of the new league are Mrs. A. Spring, Oshkosh, president; Mrs. J. Munch, Neenah, vice president; Ellen Dunn, Appleton, secretary; Mrs. A. Weiss, Fond du Lac, treasurer. Directors are Cora Blenker, Neenah, Leola Dunn, Appleton, Dorothy Peters, Fond du Lac and Mrs. E. Sarenkel, Oshkosh.

MUCH ADO ABOUT SEVERAL THINGS

G. R. M'Intyre

Lawrence college cagers will receive their first test Thursday evening in a practice game at Green Bay against the Y. M. C. A. team from that city. The frays won't bear any resemblance to a bona fide game, for Denney will run in substitutes as he sees fit, jerk his men whenever he wishes and give all the 15 men on his squad a shot at the game. The Bay Y aggregation has staged some fairly good games this winter so far and may give the locals unexpected opposition.

Friday night Denney again will take his aggregation out against a team from Menasha, composed of former high school stars from that city. The game will be played in the S. A. Cook armory at Neenah, the procedure being the same as followed at Green Bay Thursday night. Saturday sometime he will pit his gang against the combined output of several years' college teams, Eddie Kotal, Pete Brise, Stew Mills, Jake Zussman and others who still have a few cage games in their system. Denney's regular season opens Jan. 4 with Hamilton university here and he intends to get in the greatest amount of work possible before that time.

Coach Joseph Shields high school cagers also resume practice Thursday. They started a two hour hour under direction of Assistant Coach Leland DeLorge, at two o'clock and spent the time passing and shooting. The highs didn't look so hot against Kaukauna last week, especially in the second period when the going was hard and they'll have to improve considerably to take the measure of Sheboygan next week at the Chalmers city.

SANGOR WORKING HARD FOR BOUT WITH MORGAN
Chicago—(P)—Discouraged but still ambitious, Jess Sangor, the Milwaukee featherweight, who threatened to retire from the ring following his knockout by Armando Santiago, Cuba, recently, has settled down to a week of intensive training here for his 10 round championship bout with Ted Moran, junior light weight title holder.

Around The Sport World

MANUFACTURED COMPETITION
DURING the period when there was something of a general clamor from the west that the Yankees be broken up for the good of baseball, some of the disinterested people objected that it wouldn't work.

Equalization of playing strength, they maintained, would promote competition but it wouldn't do the business of baseball any good to show the customers that teams were being fixed to get their cash.

The American professional basketball league is trying a similar experiment now. Competition in the league was almost stifled by the continued domination of the New York Celtics.

Before the season opened this year the officials of the league, in some manner, succeeded in having the Celtics disbanded only to run into another distressing situation.

THEY GOT TOO GOOD, TOO
When the Celtics were disbanded, Max Rosenblum, owner of the Cleveland club, got busy and signed three of the Celtics, Lopchik, Dehnert and Barry, for his club. With two leftovers from last year's team, Hickey and Husta, the Rosenblums started tearing through the league.

They won ten games in a row, went into first place and ruined the hopes of the other clubs in the league. Rosenblum was then notified that he had to transfer Hickey, the best forward in the league. It was said that in dickering for the three former Celtics Rosenblum had promised Rochester the pick of any player on his team with the exception of Husta. Rochester called for Hickey and Rosenblum was ordered to turn him over.

But Hickey didn't go to Rochester. He was shipped right to Chicago, where a winning team means more to the business of the league than a winning team in Rochester.

There was a terrible roar from the Cleveland customers and if the Rosenblums don't win the pennant the professional game may be killed in what was being developed in to a pretty good basketball sport.

HOCKEY MEN AREN'T DUMB
The two New York clubs in the National Hockey League have been built into such a strengthened position that they are almost as powerful in their class as the New York baseball clubs are in theirs.

But it is not likely that the owners of the other clubs will try to break them up. Instead of being a detriment to the business of professional hockey, the New York clubs have made the league financially successful.

Hockey is now the most popular winter sport in New York. The champion Rangers and the Americans have been drawing crowds of from 16,000 to 20,000 customers and the visiting clubs, of course, share handsomely in the cut of the profits.

MIDDLEWEIGHTS TO FIGHT FRIDAY EVE

Real Battle in Prospect; Will Be Watched by "600 Millionaires"

By ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
New York—(P)—One of the most important social events of the boxing season involves Ace Hudkins, of the Hudkines of Nebraska, and Rene Devos, the Belgian middleweight who is now connected with the Biddles of Philadelphia. They will fight it out Friday night with the prospect that most, if not all of the white shirt fronts of the famous "600 millionaires" will be in evidence.

Devos, fast and a good fighter, has impressed critics as the best foreign 160-pounder to come to these shores since Tommy Milligan. He will find Hudkins the most willing and persistent opponent he has yet met.

There is no doubt whatever about it being a scrap when Ace crawls through the ropes. The lean fair haired puncher from the corn country prefers the going when it is rough. The more punishment he absorbs the more willing he seems. Like the wildcat for whom he is named, Hudkins crouches in his corner, ready for the spring at the tap of the bell for every round.

Hudkins likes to fight. The records bear this out and testify he has overlooked few prospective opponents of his class, as a welter or middleweight.

Hudkins took on Rudy Goldstein and knocked out the pride of the Ghetto a few years ago when Rudy was the sensation of New York. The Ace had three torrid scraps with Sammy Baker, the socking sergeant, coming back to win the last two after being stopped by the soldier at the Polo grounds in 1927.

Last June, in a spectacular fight that ended in a downpour of rain, Hudkins lost a terrific battle with Mickey Walker for the world's middleweight title at Chicago. It seemed to not a few of the drenched experts that Ace had the edge but the award went to Walker.

Whether he stakes his crown next against either Hudkins or Devos Walker may as well start preparing for a busy evening.

SHARKEY, STRIBLING
WILL FIGHT, FEB. 26

New York—(P)—The New York Times says Thursday that Tex Rickard will announce Friday from Miami, Fla., that he has signed Jack Sharkey to fight Young Stribling at Miami on Feb. 26.

MAY KICK SOME BASKETS
Nelson, the sharp-shooting goal kicker of the football team, is one of the sophomores to break in on the Iowa varsity basketball squad.

Match Bowling Games Still Are In Vogue

Match bowling games still continue in vogue about the city especially during the holidays when league bowling is at a standstill. Games bowled recently show the Heckert Shoe company team beating the Johnson Dry Cleaners 2,403 to 2,142; Hopfensperger Sausages beating the Oshkosh Five 2,479 to 2,202; the Whoopies beating the Whoopies 2,621 to 2,806, and the Arcades beating the A. A. L. team 2,699 to 2,631.

GEORGIA TECH LOOKS GOOD IN SCRIMMAGE

California Bears Now Drill Once Daily to Prevent Staleness
Pasadena, Calif.—(P)—Ten workouts in six days have put the University of California Bears into such shape that beginning Thursday they will undergo but one practice session daily until their meeting in the Rose Bowl on New Year's day with the Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech.

"Nibs" Price, Bear coach announced his satisfaction with work-out progress by telling his charges that their load had been thus lightened.

Coach Bill Alexander, encountered some adversity Wednesday when the Georgia Tornado's regular guard, Raleigh Drennon and his understudy, Jim Brooke, were sent to camp to recover from fevers. The day was not a total wreck for Alexander, however, because he is said to have witnessed a highly satisfactory scrimmage session.

It was Tech's first heavy scrimmage since arriving here. The Yellow-Jackets, who worked behind

BUILD HOCKEY RINK FOR CHICAGO CLUB

Chicago—(P)—The Chicago Blackhawks are going to build a home of their own.
Major Frederic McLaughlin, president of the hockey club, member of the National Professional Hockey league, announced at the palace, costing $750,000 will be erected on the north side and will be ready for use for the 1929-30 playing season.
Oval shaped stands accommodating 12,000 spectators will be constructed and the skating rink will be large enough for a five lap mile track, Major McLaughlin said.
The Blackhawks were ousted from the Chicago Coliseum, where they have been playing their home games, when the Coliseum Athletic club decided to use the building exclusively for boxing.

From the ticket offices Thursday came the announcement that 8,500 tickets still remained unsold but that the S. R. O. sign probably would be hung out before New Year's day. The bowl is being made ready to seat more than 100,000.

COACHES ARRIVING FOR ANNUAL MEET

Executive Sessions Scheduled for Thursday's Program at New Orleans

New Orleans, La. — (AP)—Football coaches representing almost every American university and college were in New Orleans Thursday to attend the twenty-third annual convention of the National Association of Football Coaches, and many proposed changes in the rules will be debated during the meeting which extends through Saturday.

Among the later arrivals were 70 eastern coaches, headed by Glenn (Chick) Mehan of New York university, who came to New Orleans on a special train. Alonzo Stagg of the University of Chicago and Lou Little of Georgetown reached New Orleans Wednesday.

Executive sessions were on Thursday's program and it is thought that many of the proposed changes in the rules, including "Pop" Warner's plan to eliminate the games by awarding victory to the team making the most number of first downs in cases where actual scoring is tied, will be presented.

DOEHLING, RIPON, TO OFFICIATE MOST H. S. GAGE CONTESTS

For the benefit of fans who entertain the idea they are better officials than those who are hired by the conference to officiate, we respectfully publish the following referees for the 1929 Fox River valley basketball season. Appleton fans will notice that Carl Doebling, director of athletics at Ripon college, will officiate in most games in which the Orange participates. However, Erditz, Witte and Cahoon also get a crack at the locals sometimes during the season. Did we hear any objections?

NEGRO IN CONGRESS IS 1ST SINCE 1903

Illinois Colored Man Is One of Few to Survive Thompson Defeat

Chicago — (AP)—One member of the disrupted Thompson-Crowe political organization survived the avalanche of November 6 votes to emerge a member of congress, the first negro Illinois ever sent to Washington. Not since 1903 has one of his race been in congress.

He is Oscar De Priest, 58 years old, only one generation removed from slave days in Alabama. Virtually all others of the republican faction formerly controlled by Mayor William Hale Thompson and State Attorney Robert E. Crowe, were swept out of office, or away from it, in Cook county races.

De Priest succeeds to the first district seat occupied for 23 years by the late Martin B. Madden. The congressman-elect was bitterly opposed by certain republican factions who supported an independent candidate and by a democrat.

De Priest now is under indictment in connection with vote frauds and other irregularities at the primary of last April. He has been one of the targets of the special grand jury action that followed violence and murder at that election.

Madden's successor was the first negro alderman in Chicago and the first county commissioner of his race. He maintains a real estate business, leaving, however, much of its operation to a son. Politics largely occupies his time.

Reconstruction after the civil war sent De Priest's parents away from the Florence, Ala., plantation where they were slaves, north to taste of their new freedom. Oscar was then a baby.

After a few years in Kansas, the negro boy came to Chicago. The "black belt" then a tiny segregated district, back from the aristocratic Lake Michigan bounded residence district, swallowed him. Today the "black belt" has engulfed lower Michigan avenue and De Priest is its representative in congress.

A HABIT WITH HIM
St. Louis City, Mo.—The whiskey must have been good, or else Wallace Shumate, 49, couldn't have born up under it. He has been arrested for intoxication 117 times since the first of the year. On his last offense, the judge ordered him out of town.

Kayser, head of the delegation, relates, "when we learned that the landing did not wake one of the members of the party who was taking a nap at the time. Most of the trip a bridge game was in progress in the cabin."

PRESIDENT OF MEXICO IS INVITED TO TEXAS

El Paso, Texas — (AP)—President Portes Gil of Mexico may attend the annual convention of the West Texas chamber of commerce in El Paso next May.

Eight representatives of the organization made a good-will trip by airplane to Mexico City to invite the new president of the republic to El Paso.

The flight was also a pioneering venture in air transportation between the Texas border city and the Mexican capital. It was made in a tri-motored Ford machine which carried two pilots and a mechanic besides the eight passengers.

Although flying an unmapped course, the plane had only one mishap. A forced landing was made at Aguascalientes on the flight south because a strong wind blew the craft off its intended route.

WOULD CURB QUACKS BY POSTAL TRANSLATOR

Washington — (AP)—Manufacturers of fake nostrums and appliances are reaping a rich harvest among foreign speaking people in the United States because the postoffice department is unable to decipher their advertising in the foreign press.

A house committee, hearing budget needs of the postoffice department, was told a translator was needed solely for the purpose of rendering into English the flowery advertisements for cure-alls and questionable products in foreign language newspapers of the country.

The department has one translator, but he is busy on communications from foreign administrations. Manufacturers of fake nostrums and appliances advertise their products without semblance of restraint in the foreign press and thus make themselves liable to prosecution, the committee was told.

INDEX OF GENERAL LEVEL OF FARM PRICES DROPS 3 POINTS

BUYING POWER OF FARMERS ALSO IS LESS THAN IN '27

Declines in Cotton, Corn, Barley, Wheat, Offset by Other Advances

The index of the general level of farm prices declined three points during the period from Oct. 15 to Nov. 15, reports the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. At 134 per cent of the pre-war level, the index is three points below November a year ago. The present level of prices received by farmers at 124 per cent of pre-war prices compares with 157, the level of prices paid by farmers, indicating a relative purchasing power of 86 for November, compared with 88 in October and 91 a year ago. Declines in cotton, corn, barley, wheat, rye, potatoes, meat animals, horses, mules, and chickens more than offset advances in oats, hay, apples, cottonseed, dairy and poultry products.

The index of the farm prices of meat animals declined 10 points from October 15 to November 15, while grains declined 6 points; fruits and vegetables, 5 points; and cotton and cottonseed 1 point. These declines more than offset seasonal advances of 17 points in the index for poultry products and 1 point in the index for dairy products during the same period.

The farm prices of hogs, which began to decline in October, showed another sharp decline from October 15 to November 15. The 11 per cent decline during this period was due largely to an increase in market receipts. Receipts of hogs at several principal markets during the 4-week period ending November 17 were approximately 12 per cent higher than for a similar period ending October 20. From October 15 to November 15, the corn-hog ratio remained at 11.3 for the United States and advanced from 12.2 to 12.6 for Iowa.

The continued decline in the farm price of best cattle amounted to approximately 4 per cent from October 15 to November 15. The decline in the farm price was accompanied by the marketing of proportionately large supplies of good and choice feed steers for this season of the year.

CORN STILL DROPPING
The farm price of corn continued to decline from Oct. 15 to Nov. 15, amounting to 13 per cent in the North Central States, 12 per cent in the North Atlantic States, 9 per cent in the South Atlantic States, 6 per cent in the South Central States, and 5 per cent in the Far West. These declines were accompanied by a marked increase in market receipts, due to the marketing of the new crop. Receipts at 14 primary markets during the 2-week period ending November 17 were more than twice as large as in a corresponding period ending October 20.

The farm price of wheat declined approximately 2 per cent from October 15 to November 15. With the exception of a 2 per cent price increase in the South Atlantic States, and no appreciable change in North Atlantic States, the decline in the farm prices of wheat was fairly general for the country as a whole. Declines in the farm price of wheat this season have been accompanied by the accumulation of large visible wheat supply and small exports. The farm price of potatoes declined approximately 2 per cent from October 15 to November 15 for the country as a whole. At 57 cents per bushel the farm price on November 15 compares with 55 cents on November 15, 1927, and 61 cents, the November 15 average from 1910 to 1914. While the farm prices of potatoes advanced 9 per cent in the Far West and 5 per cent in the South Central States during the month prior to November 15, farm price declines amounted to 7 per cent in the North Atlantic States, 5 per cent in the North Central States, and 2 per cent in the South Atlantic States. The decline in the farm price of potatoes for the entire country was accompanied by indications that the total 1928 production of both early and late potatoes will be nearly 2,000,000 bushels larger than estimated on October 1.

The farm price of eggs advanced about 13 per cent from October 15 to November 15 due largely to a seasonal decline in receipts. However, the farm price on November 15 was still about 5 per cent below that of November 15, 1927 because of unusually large storage holdings and heavy fall production.

SWISS COWS BECOMING NOTED MOVIE "STARS"

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C.—Aristocratic bovines of the Swiss dairy industry are becoming movie "stars," according to information received at the Department of Commerce.

A three-part motion picture has just been completed by the Swiss Milk Commission showing how to properly care for purebred dairy cattle.

Milk is the most important branch of the Swiss dairy industry, supporting about 275,000 of its 800,000 families. The yearly milk production is 62,000,000 gallons. To produce this quantity of milk four breeds of cattle are favored: The Simmentaler, the Brown cattle, the Fribourger and Black-dappled cattle, and Ehringer cattle.

The movie produced by the Milk Commission shows the proper care and treatment of cattle, illustrated by the use of good and bad examples. Considerable information is also given regarding the treatment of various cattle diseases. Another section of the film deals entirely with milking and milk handling on the farm.

Happy Valley School Finished In Greenville

BY W. F. WINSEY

Hortonville — Constructed of red pressed brick, finished inside in dark oak, standing on spacious grounds with a long gradual slope as a background, the new Happy Valley school building, joint district No. 4, town of Greenville, is one of the most attractive school houses in Outagamie-co. Ventilated, lighted, heated and equipped by the latest approved methods, the building is a model for service, health, and comfort of the children of the district. As it is the third school building erected on the same spot in the past 75 years, it stands as a monument testifying to the progressive, educational proclivities of the past and present generations of the people of the district.

Although the pupils moved into the new building Nov. 5, plans for the dedication ceremonies have not been completed. Twenty-eight pupils and their teacher, Miss Margaret Sambs, are enjoying the change, and trying to reflect their advantage in the character of their school work.

On the main floor of the building are the school rooms, stage kitchen, two cloak rooms and two toilets. In the basement are the furnace room, coal room and play room.

Deciding on a new building a year ago this winter, the people of the district started construction work in June under the immediate supervision of Marion Ruppel, the clerk of the district, and the building was completed during the latter part of October. It is said that the cost of the building was $6,500.

The first school building that stood on the site of the new building was built of logs about 75 years ago. The second, which served 60 years up to Nov. 5, 1928, served 60 years. Mrs. Elizabeth Ruppel, formerly Elizabeth Dey, now at the home of Marion Ruppel, attended school in the log building and says that the building was destroyed by fire.

Members of the school board are W. C. Schulz, director, Elmer Miller, treasurer, and Marion Ruppel, clerk.

HAY, WHEAT AND RYE ARE SCARCE

Corn, Oats, and Barley Are More Abundant Than They Were a Year Ago

Madison — (P)—In a review of the feed and milk prices situation in Wisconsin, the federal-state crop and livestock reporting service has found that corn oats and barley are much more abundant than a year ago but that hay and other grains, such as rye and wheat, are much less plentiful.

The final estimate of corn production for the year indicates an increase over last year of nearly twenty-three million bushels. The increase in oats is over fifteen million bushels and in barley over five and one-half million bushels. Marked decreases occurred in the minor grain crops, such as rye, wheat and flax, and the most important decrease of all is that in hay, the tame hay tonnage of 1928 being estimated at about 870,000 tons below last year for the state. In addition, the quality of hay this year was not up to last year in many sections.

Prices on grains are below a year ago but hay prices are higher. The average farm price of tame hay on December 1, this year is estimated at $14.40 per ton as compared with $12.50 per ton a year ago. Corn, on the other hand, is 73 cents per bushel as compared with 84 cents a year ago; oats 43 cents per bushel as compared with 47 cents a year ago and barley 65 cents per bushel as compared with 47 cents a year ago. The farm value of the feed crops this year is approximately the same as a year ago. The gain in the value of grain crops is practically offset by the decrease in the value of tame hay production. Corn made very good yields in Wisconsin this year and there is a good supply of silage, which partly offsets the generally short crop of hay.

Milk prices during November and December have been below a year ago though the first nine months of the year were higher than in 1927. The fact that the last two months have been below a year ago indicates that we may have reached and passed the high point in the present milk price cycle. If this is true, it is desirable that Wisconsin dairymen pay close attention to feed costs as a slight reduction in milk prices with feed prices at present levels may make it increasingly difficult to feed profitably.

Wisconsin milk prices for the past three years are given below:

	1928	1927	1926
January	$2.34	$2.25	$2.11
February	2.25	2.22	2.04

GROW LEGUME HAY, IS ADVICE OF U. S. TO DAIRY FARMERS

Superior Feeding Value Has Long Been Recognized, Says Department

For 2,000 years agriculturists have recognized the superior feeding value of legume hays, yet today, says J. R. Dawson, senior dairy husbandman of the Bureau of Dairy Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, only 41 per cent of the hay grown in the United States is legume hay. Furthermore, he says, in the North Central and North Atlantic States, which contain 66 per cent of all the dairy cows of the country, the farmers grow two tons of non-legume hay to one of legume hay. These statements are made in Farmers' Bulletin 1573-F, "Legume Hays for Milk Production," recently issued by the department.

"If dairymen would grow and feed more protein in the form of legume hays, their feed bills would be reduced materially," says the author, who gives some interesting data comparing legume hays with timothy in yield of protein and other nutrients.

During 1927, according to figures in the bulletin, the average acre of alfalfa yielded 2.73 tons of hay per acre, clover 1.75 tons per acre, and timothy 1.42 tons per acre; the average acre of alfalfa produced almost 7 times as much digestible protein, more than twice as much total digestible nutrients, and 15 times as much lime as did timothy.

"In other words," says Dawson, 15 acres of timothy would have to be grown, harvested and fed to produce as much lime as 1 acre of alfalfa. It would require approximately 7 acres of timothy hay to produce as much crude digestible protein as 1 acre of alfalfa.

"When the price of alfalfa is around $12 a ton it will furnish 100 pounds of digestible protein for $5.65, whereas from timothy hay at $11 a ton the same amount of protein costs $18.85. Even when compared with the high-protein concentrates, such as linseed meal and cottonseed meal at $47 to $50 a ton, alfalfa compares favorably in cost of protein. The cost of the dairy ration may be reduced materially by supplying a portion of the protein with alfalfa hay or some other legume grown on the farm. The legume that can be most practically produced on a given farm is the one that should be given first consideration."

A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

SUSPENDED ANIMATION

Leeds, England — The musical festival here recently was marked by decision of Sir Thomas Beecham to suspend extremely modern music for the preservation of his suspenders. The elastic stood the strain for five days of snappy conducting—while his collars wilted—but on the sixth it parted. Be it said for Sir Beecham that he nonchalantly unbuttoned the broken band, put it in his pocket and proceeded with the next number.

The Danger In Deep-Seated Coughs and Colds

People neglect "simple colds," which often develop pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza and other wasting diseases. They allow the cold to grow worse until the inflammation spreads to the bronchial tubes and the air passages, and the body is too weak to fight the disease.

Father John's Medicine will break up the cold and deep-seated cough and build up "fighting strength," and good red blood.

Father John's Medicine does its work without using drugs or alcohol. It has had over 73 years of success.

Pioneer Settler In Town Of Osborn Still Active

By W. F. WINSEY
Seymour — "A sketch of my life is not worth anything," was the reply that the writer got from John Hurst, route 5, who is the only one of the first settlers of the town of Osborn, still owning, living on, and helping to work the farms that they, as ambitious, robust pioneers cleared and turned into productive lands. From all the other farms of the town, so far as is known, the pioneers have disappeared and their farms are either in the hands of a second or third generation or of those who came west on a subsequent wave of settlers.

Mr. Hurst's appearance at the time he dubbed himself an "old grizzle" was that of an active, sturdy farmer of not more than 60 years. He is as straight as an arrow, vigorous. His senses are perfect, and he still retains his early powers of an interesting conversationalist. At the time the writer saw him he had returned from the stables where he had been finishing up his chores. His senses are perfect, and he still retains his early powers of an interesting conversationalist. At the time the writer saw him he had returned from the stables where he had been finishing up his chores.

John Hurst is a lumberman, river driver, as a pioneer clearing land and as farmer working his land, has put in exceedingly long days and was always and persistently on the job. And all his long days and hard work do not appear to have injured him in the least.

Mr. Hurst was born north of Toronto, Canada, in 1849, the son of John Hurst, Sr., and was one of 11 children. After he had finished his education he did man's work in the lumber woods of Canada at $8 a month for several years.

BORN IN CANADA

The father, John Hurst, Sr., preceded by a son and a daughter, came to the United States in 1867. James was working in the lumber woods and Catherine was at work in the Speaker Hotel in Appleton. On his arrival in Osborn, the father purchased what is the old homestead and took up his residence in a log cabin in virgin timber, near the site of the town hall of Osborn. As the father found no other suitable work to do he busied himself for some time at the shoe-maker trade in the cabin but John, the subject of this sketch, started at once for the lumber woods where he got employment at $35 a month, and in the spring as a river driver where his wages were $3 a day. As a result of getting such big wages, John decided that the United States was the best country on earth for a young man to carve out a home.

John started with his axe on his father's homestead in the spring and because his father was not able to do such heavy work he did not stop except in winter and spring to lumber and drive the rivers, until the farm was cleared.

As the first move in the game of founding a home for himself, John purchased a block of virgin timber joining his father's farm on the east. After the purchase, he cut the timber and opened up a road from the Appleton-Seymour road to his farm.

Before John Hurst began clearing the two farms mentioned, the Stinsons had made a large clearing in the town of Osborn. The McNabys had cleared about 50 acres, the McDaniels, 50 acres, Laux had cleared 10 acres, Manley had cleared 10 acres, the Knoxes 30 acres, the Shepherds 20 acres and the Hussmans were on the ground and had done some clearing. This is in accordance with Mr. Hurst's recollections. While Mr. Hurst was clearing the two farms, he worked nine winters and springs at Jumberling.

Four years after he purchased his farm or in 1874, Mr. Hurst married Samantha Powell. The children of the couple are Mrs. Margaret Frye, living on the homestead, William on the first homestead, Thomas, deceased, Mrs. Adolph Schultz, on a part of the first homestead, Alfred operating the second homestead, and Mrs. Irvin Brucker, town of Maine.

Although Mr. Hurst has served on the town board, and has always been keenly interested in public affairs, he never had any aspiration to run for public office. His greatest pleasure outside of his home has invariably come from contact with his relatives, neighbors and acquaintances. He enjoys going to church, lodge, picnics, community meetings or public gatherings of any description.

SHORT COURSE TERM STARTS ON JAN. 2

Enrollment May Be Made With T. L. Bewick, College of Agriculture

By W. F. WINSEY
The second of the short courses in agriculture of the University of Wisconsin begins Jan. 2.

"It is not too late to plan to attend," says an announcement. "The College of Agriculture is interested in serving all who are interested. The Wisconsin Short course will help you plan now for success in farming."

If you are planning to enroll for the work, send word to Prof. T. L. Bewick, College of Agriculture, stating your intention and hope. "At the University of Wisconsin for the past 43 years, the Winter courses in Agriculture for farm boys have been very popular," said Verne V. Varney. "To date about 7,000 boys have taken advantage of the short course. The main purpose of the course in agriculture is to train young men for the business of farming and allied work."

"After a boy has attended the two winter courses, secured his Short Course certificate or continued on for the third year or even gone the fourth year and secured everything that is given, in the schedule, what is he prepared to do? First and foremost, he should be equipped to understand and cope with farm problems better than before, general farm labor problems, those of herdsmen, foremen, farm managers, share renters, cost testing and the entire line of farm production and distribution. Many short course boys qualify admirably for dealing successfully with those problems."

"You are wondering about the expenses of the short course. For Wisconsin boys it has been found that the expenses vary from $135 to $225 for the 15 weeks or proportionally for each of these three periods. Recognizing the advantages and equipment available, including library and laboratories, the cost is not high."

Black Creek—The prosperity of the farmers, coming from cash crops and surpluses of livestock, is partially shown by the fact that from Jan. 1, 1928 to Dec. 17 they produced 116 carloads of cabbage that were shipped over the Green Bay and Western Railroad, 41 carloads of mixed livestock, 13 carloads of sugar beets, and 10 carloads of table beets.

Shiocton—From Jan. 1, 1928, to Dec. 13, farmers in this vicinity raised 119 carloads of kraut that were shipped from this station, 316 carloads of cabbage, 45 carloads of livestock, four carloads of hay and grain. They received during the same period 19 carloads of flour and feed, two carloads of agricultural limestone and five carloads of commercial fertilizer.

Many students come to college just to get atmosphere, says a dean at Columbia. Maybe that's why so many get the air.

POULTRY SCOURGE TEST INACCURATE

Conclusions Are Reached by Veterinary Science Departments of University

Madison — Conclusive evidence that the agglutination test, now being used in nearly a dozen states to eradicate white diarrhea in poultry, is unreliable and inaccurate, is presented by scientists in the poultry husbandry and veterinary science departments of the University of Wisconsin.

The conclusions, recently announced by officials of the College of Agriculture, support previous results obtained at the university, but disagree rather drastically with trials reported in other states. The experiments were supervised by J. G. Halpin and Clayton Holmes, poultry husbandmen, and B. A. Beach and C. R. Strange, veterinary scientists.

Hens, considered free of the disease as a result of repeated tests, were examined by bacteriological and anatomical methods by the specialists. Twenty-four per cent of the birds were found to lay eggs which carried the organisms, and 69 per cent were discovered on post-mortem examination to be infected with the specific organisms causing the disease.

"These experiments indicate the unreliability of the test for diagnosing the disease, and question any attempt to eradicate white diarrhea from a flock by means of this method," the investigators say in a joint report. "While the test is of some value in lessening the infection in individual flocks, it is not accurate enough to be used in a state-wide campaign of accreditation."

White diarrhea causes an immense loss to the poultry industry, and some states have attempted to eradicate it in a manner similar to the campaign against tuberculosis in dairy herds. The Wisconsin experimenters prove that if definite progress is to be made in this direction it is necessary to improve the method of detecting the disease.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
ASHTORETH ASHE, beautiful stenographer, appears to have made a decided impression upon HOLLIS HART, her wealthy employer MORTON, known to Mr. Hart as MAE DE MARR.

Sadie, frivolous and tawdry, has accepted an extraordinary gift of $10,000 from the rather quixotic millionaire. He is astonished when he discovers that she and Ashtoreth are old friends. And Ashtoreth is afraid that he will be no longer interested in her.

She goes with Sadie to the grand apartment rented and furnished through the benevolence of Mr. Hart. And there Sadie airs a gold-digger's views on men and morals. Ashtoreth secures from her a partial promise that she will not attempt to black mail her benefactor, and return to the office relieved. Perhaps, after all she will remain in the good graces of the famous Mr. Hart.

At the end of the day she goes home in great good humor, hearing $10,000 to MAZIE, her gold-brother and rather commonplace mother. Maizie tells her that MONTY ENGLISH is coming to call.

Ashtoreth throws up her hands.

You're just naturally bound to marry off Mrs. Ashe's daughter, aren't you, Ma? she teases. But beneath her banter there is a shade of annoyance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER VIII

At eight o'clock Monty English arrived. Gauche, Ashtoreth called him. Maizie was not at all sure what that meant. But Monty, to her way of thinking, was a fine, upstanding young man. He was young and tall and blond.

"Nordic," Ashtoreth said. But then Maizie wasn't sure about that either.

His hair was crisp. Bleached by the sun on top and sort of coppery down near the roots. He had brown eyes with flecks in them, and a big, good-humored mouth. When he smiled it began with a crinkle at the corners of his eyes and ended in a quirk at the corners of his mouth. And he had extraordinarily good-looking teeth. White as snow, or clouds, or a clean white shroud. So white they really shone.

Monty English sold radios and played a ukulele. He danced like a professional, or a dream come true. And he made love the way every girl wonders why men don't. It was strange, then, that he did not register with Ashtoreth. Maybe he talked too much about radios. And radios bored Ashtoreth. She wondered why he never discovered it.

He brought a box of glass fruits for Maizie. When Maizie expressed a preference, Monty never forgot. "You girls want to go to the movies?" he invited.

But Maizie protested coply. "Oh, you young folks want to talk."

At nine o'clock she made toast in the gas oven and cooked cheese with eggs and tomato, in the chafing dish. Then she made coffee and cut huge pieces of fudge cake known as Wellesley.

At 10 she had headache and went to bed, with sly backward glances and playful admonitions.

"Ash," said Monty English, when Maizie had closed her bedroom door. "We've known each other for three years now. That's a long time for a man to adore a girl who doesn't know he's living."

Ashtoreth began, absently, to gather the coffee cups.

"Oh, please, Monty," she protested.

"Put that stuff down," he ordered, "and listen."

"But we've been over it so often!" she objected.

"No, we haven't," he told her. "This is something new, Ash. I'm just through being a doorman—that's all. I'm signing off tonight. Little girl, John Sap speaking. Signing off for good and all."

He spoke lightly, but there was an air of finality in the things he said. So that Ashtoreth felt a queer little tightening around her heart.

Dear old Monty! Why, he was almost as inevitable as Maizie. Not this way to anyone but you. You know how much I love Mother. That's why I couldn't say this to any one else. They might think I didn't love her. But you know her, Monty. And you know how sweet and good, and self-sacrificing she is. That's why I feel like a perfect snake, saying such a thing."

Monty stood up.

"Don't say it, then," he advised. "Putting your mother on the pan doesn't rate a thing with me, Ash."

Ashtoreth's face turned scarlet.

"You deliberately misunderstood me!" she dared angrily. "I simply worship the ground my mother walks on—and you know it! I was only going to say—"

"No, you weren't," he cut in sharply. "You weren't going to say a thing."

"I was merely remarking," she insisted, "that, much as I adore my mother, I can't help realizing—"

Monty clasped his hand over her mouth. And then, folding her in the hollow of his arm, drew her head back and kissed her eyelids. She leaned against him—and held his arms about her shoulders.

"Don't let's quarrel," she murmured.

"You know," he said irreverently, "you're the most beautiful eyelids in the world. Did you ever notice how few women have lovely eyelids? Yours are like a Madonna's, Ashtoreth. So delicately white. Did you know they're little blue tendrils in them? Don't ever cry, and spoil them, will you, sweetheart?"

He kissed them again, very tenderly. But he did not touch her lips, even when she raised her mouth and pouted provocatively.

"I'm going to New York," he told her, holding her against him. "And it might as well be China. Because I'm not coming around any more. Ashtoreth, I'll be selling from the home office, and traveling west, out of New York."

"A temporary transfer?" she asked.

"No, I asked for it," he told her. "I tell you, Ash, there's no sense in my ruining all your prospects. I haven't a Chinaman's chance myself. Not until I crash through and make a million. And since you can't love me you might just as well love somebody else. Somebody who'll make you happier maybe than I could ever make you—though God knows he wouldn't try any harder."

"But he'll have to be a prince, Ash, or I'll come back and finish him. I'm not stepping aside for any flat tire, little girl. You pick him pretty now, or I'll be doing time for manslaughter. Because I'm going to pop off any egg that isn't what you might call worthy of being my successor."

"No kidding, Ash. The best is none too good for you. I'll tell the world, honey, that you can call your own. And don't forget it."

Monty lit another cigarette.

"With those few words," he announced, "the hero withdraws."

But Ashtoreth, womanlike, could not dismiss, in a moment, a renunciant ation that dramatically might be prolonged.

"You'll write me," she pleaded. "And I'll be your very best friend—forever and forever. And if you get dreadfully lonely you'll come home again? It isn't like saying goodbye, Monty—not really, I mean."

But Monty shrugged his broad shoulders.

"It strikes me," he declared, "that Tosti and I sang our little swan songs in the same key" . . . and, striking a tragedian's attitude, proclaimed the immortal words of the sad farewell:

"Goodbye to hope! Goodbye to pain! Goodbye forever! Goodbye!"

He laughed shortly, embarrassed, perhaps, because the scene savored of heroics.

He held her tightly, and her hair caught on a button of his coat.

"Goodbye, little sweetheart." His lips were close against her neck, so that his breath made a little shivers ripple along her flesh. "I love you—love you!"

But Ashtoreth, holding her head so that the hair did not pull, scarcely heard him. She was thinking of Hollis Hart.

(To Be Continued)

Thinking of Hollis Hart didn't, really, do Ashtoreth much good. Read the next chapter and discover why.

"Men Of The South Pole"

One of the great figures of early Antarctic discovery was Sir James Clark Ross. In 1839 the British Admiralty sent him to find the South Magnetic Pole. With his two little ships, the Erebus and the Terror, he battled with unknown tides, desperate winds, huge ice floes and bergs. Land stopped him at what we now call Cape Adare.

Here a mountain reared its icy head ten thousand feet. Ross named it Mount Sabine after a brilliant scientist.

The Ross Sea, the Great Ice Barrier and the volcanoes Mount Erebus and Mount Terror, also were his discoveries.

After a cruise of nearly four and half years, the Erebus and Terror reached England. Ross' old friend, Sir John Franklin, then took the ships for one of the most tragic of all polar voyages. Franklin and all his men lost their lives fighting their way in the terrible Northwest Passage. (To Be Continued)

MERCHANTS BUSY EXCHANGING GIFTS

Nearly All New London Stores Trade Many Articles Bought for Christmas

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Wednesday in practically all city stores was exchange day—a day for returning the necktie bought by the wife who chose unwisely, for the return of clothing and footwear which did not please entirely as regards size or style.
Many stores sold this year with that understanding and the employees in many of the shops dealing in this type of merchandise were busy throughout the day.
Stocks are also undergoing changes, Christmas displays giving way to the every day necessities. Most of the stores are arranging for post-holiday sales and for the annual inventory. It has been a good season, the dealers declared, buying being brisk for weeks up to the closing hour on Christmas eve.

MRS. AGNES FREIBURGER SUCCEUMS AT OSHKOSH

New London—Mrs. Agnes Freiburger, 83, died early Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Miller, at Oshkosh, where she had resided during the past few months. The body was brought to this city, but arrangements for the funeral have not been completed. Survivors are three sons and a daughter.

FORMER RESIDENT IS SERIOUSLY ILL

New London—Word has been received here by friends of Mrs. A. R. Williams, of Appleton, telling of her serious illness with pneumonia. Miss Gladys Williams had secured the services of Miss Schmalenberg, a nurse whose home was formerly here, and on Wednesday telephoned for Mrs. Rose Deacy of this city, a nurse, who was asked to come at once. The Williams family is well known here, having moved from New London only a short time ago. Mrs. Williams has suffered twice previously from pneumonia attacks, which makes her condition more serious at this time.

KROLL FUNERAL WILL BE CONDUCTED FRIDAY

New London—Funeral services for Mrs. John Kroll, 93, will be held at 1:30 Friday afternoon from the residence and at 2 o'clock from Emanuel Lutheran church, the Rev. Adolph Spiering officiating. Burial will take place in Floral Hill cemetery. Wilhelmina Friederick Kroll was born March 5, 1835, at Cerniko, Germany. She came to this country with her parents in 1854 and resided at Oshkosh. She was married in that city to John Kroll in 1858. The couple moved to this city at that time and resided here ever since. Mr. Kroll, a Civil war veteran, died here in 1926. Mrs. Kroll died at 11:30 Tuesday evening following a four months illness during which time she was confined to her bed as the result of a fall. Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Mathilda Mierswa of Milwaukee, seven grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Word has been received here by relatives of the recent death of George Riley, 63, which occurred at his home in Chicago. Mr. Riley was a pioneer resident of this city, but had practiced his profession as lawyer in Chicago for many years. Survivors are one daughter, residing in Chicago and one sister, Mrs. Mary Briggs, of this city. Burial took place at Chicago.

In order to further interest among central Waupaca-co residents, no admission is charged. The hall will be open Thursday afternoon and evening and Friday afternoon.

SCRATCH AND BARK BOOK HOLD A THIEF

Newark, N. J.—A scratch on his face and a bank book lost in a scuffle at the scene of an attempted robbery forced a dapper youth to confess his guilt to police here recently.

A 14-year-old girl, Muriel Almsworth, foiled the thief's attempt to rob the Almsworth home, by screaming for help and beating off attempts to gag her. The robber retired to the street with the young amazon at his heels.

Then a policeman captured Fredrick J. Enser and Muriel identified him by scratches on his face and a bank book he had lost in battle with the young heroine.

FLU is now Epidemic!

Compared with 1918, this epidemic, so far, is mild, and yet, in spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating night and day to meet the emergency demand for more and more Vicks VapoRub. Over 432,000 jars are now being produced daily.

How best to use Vicks VapoRub

- 1. AS A PREVENTIVE
Several times a day, insert Vicks up the nostrils. Also melt a little night and morning in a bowl of boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors. This helps to ward off germinfection.
- 2. IF A COLD STARTS
If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade. Apply hot, wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body- warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks also acts through the skin like a poultice. Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.
- 3. AFTER A FLU ATTACK
Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after influenza. Then, more than ever, colds, attacking the weakened system, may lead to bronchitis, sinus-trouble or pneumonia. This is especially true of children or old folks. Heed even the slightest cold as a danger signal. Vicks is especially valuable here, because it is applied externally, and so can be used freely, as often as needed, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

BRITISH FORTIFY GIBRALTAR WITH

Make Rocky Promontory Fortress as Statesmen Discuss Disarmament

Gibraltar — (F) — While statesmen and reformers have been discussing world disarmament Great Britain made this rocky promontory at the southern extremity of Spain on the most powerful fortresses in the world.

Gigantic guns of the latest model, most deadly pattern, have been placed along the ridge of the promontory, replacing those of smaller calibre that used to be mounted on the sea level of the famous fortress.

The most elaborate system of range-finding has been installed, and it is now possible for the big guns to fire straight into the continent of Africa four hundred miles away.

For the lesson the world has learned the great war have found.

expression at Gibraltar in the construction of the most formidable sea fortress ever known. Sweeping the Mediterranean a distance of thirty miles and operating at a height of more than 1,000 feet, these tremendous cannon have enormously increased the range and general efficiency of Gibraltar as England's guardian and sentinel to the Straits Sea. In addition to this, the great subterranean tunnels, moles, and walls, emplacements, fortifications and secret armored chambers have been built.

RECLAIM MILES

Miles of space have been claimed from the sea for the commodation of huge new dockships, wharves and jetways. There is an enclosed harbor of acres where an entire fleet may anchor, safe from torpedo or submarine attack. This harbor can be the scene of repairing, refitting and coaling of a large fleet of battleships.

The British authorities have built a number of fine moles roads, one of the largest running to the north front from the Atlantic, and another—at the back of the cave—running to the west side of the tunnel. A third road, which will be bored on the south side, encircling the Rock.

On almost every side of the Rock are a series of enormous natural caverns, some from ancient times, some of them 1,000 years old. One cave, extending 400 feet inwards, containing many chambers, the largest of the caves is more than 200 feet long and seventy feet high. It contains massive pillars of stalactite, reaching from roof to floor, and forming the most fantastic and beautiful figures. In the opinion of American visitors, even the famous Mammoth Cave in Kentucky is not so rival these caverns in beauty.

DENSELY POPULATED

Although smaller, it is less than two miles in length, it is the most densely populated spot in the world. It has 10,000 people to the square mile. In some places, this is the greatest of the world's armed crowds, is only one-quarter of a million.

wide. The residential part of Gibraltar occupies only about one-tenth of the total area of the Rock. Only a small part of the town is on level ground. Yet Gibraltar boasts nearly 25,000 population. This number 20,000 are civilians. The remainder are British and military forces. The language of the people is a corrupt Spanish.

Crowded together on the promontory, which British has so tenaciously and jealously fast to Spain for more than 200 years, a cathedral, five churches, five synagogues, seven banks, a score of schools, a race-course, recreation grounds, two courthouses, a lunatic asylum, naval and military hospital, a cemetery, library, museum, pool, public gardens, dog park, parks, and excellent bathing beaches. The streets are narrow and irregular, consisting for most part of rubble stones.

MANY RACES

Most of the inhabitants are Italians, Genoese, Maltese and Jews. The Jews, who number about 2,000, keep severely to themselves, neiintermarrying and preserving violate all the inherent characters of their race.

Islands of the over-present optogeneity of war, and the necessity of guarding intact all the secrets of the fortress, the British authorities are obliged to keep a sharp eye on any increase in the present population. Whenever possible, the poorer classes are shifted to Gibraltar across the frontier to the neighboring Spanish town
La Línea de la Concepción, which now has a population of 63,000.
Mainland and other visitors are housed on the island from 10
p. m. to 5 a. m. and from 10
a. m. and 10 p. m. after which hour the Rock is rigidly cleared of all aliens.

Although primarily and essentially a naval base, Gibraltar in recent years has become something of a health resort. It is a favorite winter place for American tourists and ships on Mediterranean cruises.
The climate is delightfully balmy, the water and pleasantly cool splendid bathing, fishing and boating. Although a great part of Gibraltar consists of rock, the top in places abounds in rich vegetation and foliage. There are fine trees of almost every variety—palm, lemons, figs, oranges, pomegranates and almonds.

The most picturesque spot in Gibraltar is the Little Gibraltar, a lake of Catalan Bay which is inhabited by the descendants of a group of Genoese seafarers who were wrecked in a storm in the Mediterranean 150 years ago and who were permitted to seek shelter in the Little Gibraltar. The present population of the village came from this small group. They have a church and a priest. The men are

ESKIMO DOGS TO HAUL MAIL TEAM

Animals Will Start "Mush" to Montreal on Thursday, Dec. 30

Lewiston, Me.—(AP)—Six black head Eskimo dogs, reputed to be the only genuine team of the kind in the world, will be harnessed to America's first international dogteam mail leaving here December 29. They will "mush" to Montreal and return, a distance of 600 miles.

Alden Pulsifer, postmaster at Minot, who drove the first official dog-team mail from Minot to Boston, Concord and Albany in 1927, will be behind the sledge. With him will be his brother, George, as relief driver. It is expected that the trip will consume three weeks.

The six 100-pound huskies that will haul the mail-filled sled originally were brought to this country from Baffinland and are now owned by Ed. Clark of North Woodstock, N. H. Mr. Clark is internationally known as a race driver and dog breeder. The dogs are members of a single family; Noochusis, the mother, being the lead dog and Ipar, the father, the sled dog.

The mail sled will touch at some 120 towns and cities during the round trip and will carry letters of holiday greeting from Maine state and civic officials to similar functionaries in New Hampshire, Vermont, and Quebec and in Montreal and other Canadian cities and towns.

Request has been made to Postmaster-General Harry S. New at Washington for the issuance of a special souvenir stamp to be used for the occasion. It was estimated that approximately 50 cents would be the charge for transporting each letter. Messages will be distributed and accepted for distribution in every town and city en route.

Persons having dog-team mail will be notified with a post-card sent through regular channels, the card serving as identification.

BROKER FINED $200 FOR LIQUOR TRANSPORTATION

Philadelphia—(AP)—Alfred E. Norris, New York lawyer, was fined $200 for violating the federal prohibition law in the transportation of liquor.

The fine was imposed by Federal Judge William H. Kirkpatrick, who ruled that the purchaser of liquor is guilty of violating the law if transportation enters into the agreement to buy.

The decision was regarded as highly important by the local federal authorities, as the defendant raised the question that under the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act it was no crime to purchase liquor.

Norris was indicted with Joel D. Kerper of Philadelphia, so-called "society bootlegger" who is serving 18 months in the federal penitentiary for violating the prohibition law. Kerper pleaded guilty but Kirkpatrick did not inflict further punishment.

Counsel for Norris admitted that Norris had purchased liquor from Kerper, but denied that it was a violation of the law.

Norris was arrested after a raid on his New York home which resulted in complaint being made to Washington against the conduct of the raiding prohibition agents.

After Judge Kirkpatrick fined Norris, his attorney took an appeal to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals and Norris was released in $400 bail.

POISONS WATCHMAN TO RANSACK LABORATORY

New York—(AP)—A man who worked alone on a robbery which mystified police Thursday killed a watchman with a powerful poison dropped in coffee, clubbed a truck driver's helper into unconsciousness with a revolver and bound and gagged the driver at the Guggenheim Brothers laboratories in New York street.

The man robbed the chauffeur of $24, and rifled the files of the laboratories but did not attempt to open the safe where about $1,000 worth of experimental metals were kept.

The man evidently had poisoned Henry Gave, 29, the watchman, when he was interrupted by the arrival of the truck with a load of tear gas from Baltimore. The gate to the plant Chester McCauley, the helper, was met by an unidentified man who admitted the truck and later inside the building struck McCauley on the head and bound Elmer Mayhew, 21, of Baltimore, the chauffeur.

MEXICAN TRAIN WRECK TAKES TOLL OF 2 LIVES

Mexico City—(AP)—Dispatches from Chihuahua state that two trainmen were killed and Governor Marcelo Caraveo of the state of Chihuahua and a number of others were injured when a train was wrecked. The locomotive plunged into an abyss when it passed over a bridge the supports of which had been weakened by a fire.

Governor Caraveo, General Jesus Ferreira, chief of military operations in the state, and about 100 other prominent citizens were returning from the opening of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad link, connecting Chihuahua and Ojinaga, on Sunday when the wreck occurred.

One dispatch said that Fesendo San Doan was arrested and claimed that four armed men forced him to burn the bridge supports.

Another report was that the wreck was the result of an act of a madman. He was stated, to have told railroad officials that he was cold and started a fire under the bridge to keep warm, and when the bridge caught fire, he let it burn.

LIGHTHOUSE TENDER IS BLOWN UP—ONE KILLED

Key West, Fla.—(AP)—One man was killed and two were seriously injured when a gas explosion demolished the lighthouse tender Poinsettia at the naval dock here Thursday.

Except for the heroism of W. F. Atkinson, a seaman aboard the naval tug Allegheny, the death toll would have been tripled.

With the sea blazing with oil and strewn with wreckage, Atkinson dived and rescued Leon Carey and Joseph Ygerian of the crew of the tender who had been hurled overboard and were unable to keep afloat because of injuries.

K. Kutson was sleeping in the berth below Ygerian at the time of the explosion. His body was found an hour and a half later.

The explosion occurred when J. F. Brown, Negro cook, attempted to light a gas stove where a fuel pipe is believed to have been leaking. An investigation of the explosion is underway.

Mostly cloudy weather will prevail throughout the central sections of the state Thursday night and Friday, and the mercury is due for decided drop down the glass tube, state predictions say.

MERRILL RESIDENT IS VICTIM OF GAS FUMES
Merrill—(AP)—An excursion into the ruins of his fire-swept cafe here in the hopes of salvaging something of value Thursday cost James Booras his life.

He opened one of the drawers and as he did so fumes arose which he inhaled. He groped his way to the street where he summoned aid. Thursday morning he died from the effects of a poisonous gas which physicians believe was nitrous oxide.

The nitrous oxide was generated, it is believed, by the action of the heat and smoke of the fire upon oranges and other fruit in the drawer. The victim was 32 years old and a former resident of Rhinelander and Wausau.

SEEK 2 BROWN-CO MEN AS ROBBERS

Martin Burke, chief of detectives and others having searched the spot an hour earlier when they found the machine.

LaDuke said he took none of the money but met the two men the next afternoon. They offered him $200 and when he refused to take it, the Green Bay man drew a .45 caliber revolver and holding it menacingly said "If you think you can stay here and squeal I'll just too bad for you."

The next morning, LaDuke said, he and the De Pere man left town, going to Fond du Lac and Madison, then southwest to Kansas City, and finally to Ranger, Tex., 125 miles from the Mexican border. There LaDuke said the De Pere man became intoxicated at a dance, and LaDuke said he robbed the man's clothes and returned to Green Bay, arriving Christmas eve. He told his story to Greenwood and gave himself up to police when he learned he was wanted.

Greenwood corroborated part of LaDuke's story. He said a man called at the garage at 9:30 and wanted to rent a car but Greenwood refused when he noticed he was intoxicated. The man then inquired for LaDuke and Greenwood told him he was at a dance. The man left. Early in the evening, Greenwood said, LaDuke had rented a car to go to a dance.

LaDuke is held without charge while search continues for the two men he implicated. The Green Bay man was on parole to the state board of control, having confessed to burglary of a warehouse. Both he and the De Pere man have served sentences in the reformatory and county jail.

Elan Delaney, Green Bay patrolman, whom police charge with being the informer of the robbers, is to be arraigned Jan. 3 on a charge of being an accessory. His arraignment, originally set for Thursday, was postponed until that time.

SELLING PRESSURE HITS STOCK MARKET

Independent Strong Spots Show Some Traders See Reinvestment Demand

New York—(AP)—Selling pressure, which became quite heavy Wednesday afternoon, when the call money rate was marked up to 12 per cent, was resumed at the opening of Thursday's stock market.

Initial declines of a point or two were recorded by Chile Copper, Chrysler, General Motors and American. American Can opened a point higher.

There were a few independent strong spots in the early trading, indicating that some operators were looking forward to an unusually heavy reinvestment demand after the turn of the year. Alas, however, was marked up more than 6 points to a new high record at 110 1/2 and Otis Elevator record 255 to a new top. National Bellas Hess showed an early advance of 4 points.

Most commission houses continuing to urge caution in the market of new commitments because of the temporary credit stringency, and the heavy year-end readjustment of speculative accounts. Such selling as came into the market was orderly in character with few breaks of any consequence.

Radio, which was weak Wednesday, rapidly sold off 5 points and Wright Aeronautical Consolidated Gas and Atchison extended their initial declines to 2 points or more in the low list of issues which sagged a point or more below Wednesday's final quotations were Union Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Standard Oil of California, Mexican Standard Oil, Loos, Wilkes, Curtiss, Simmons, Central Alloy Steel and Commercial Credit.

POLITICS RELATED TO MINERALS, SAYS U. OF W. PROFESSOR

Association Is Close, According to Head of Metallurgical Committee

Madison—(P)—World politics and mineral resources are closely related, according to Prof. C. K. Leith, University of Wisconsin geologist, and chairman of the committee on foreign and domestic mining policy of the Mining Metallurgical Society of America.

The society, he says, considers the efficient and conservative use of the world's mineral resources and the minimization of international arisings from discovery, development and marketing of mineral resources as major problems.

"The United States has been endowed with mineral resources to an extent not surpassed by any other country," Prof. Leith says. "It is utilizing these resources so fully that its annual mineral production is nearly two-fifths of the world."

"Exploration will undoubtedly disclose further large reserves, but the geological conditions are sufficiently well known to warrant the belief that the extent of mineral reserves in the United States can be approximated for the future."

However, Prof. Leith points out, in spite of vast mineral reserves, the United States is not self-contained in this respect. To substantiate this, the geologist refers to the war and how, though the United States was better supplied minerally than any other nation, it was forced to seek essential raw material in other world quarters. As a result, he says, staff preparations for war now include a study of how to control the distant sources.

"It seems difficult to lessen the insistence of the demand for raw materials," Prof. Leith asserts. "Industrial civilization and the machine age," often are disparaged, and disadvantageous comparisons are made with the intellectual or artistic accomplishments of earlier times, but no practicable method of changing the tendencies is suggested."

He showed how people, who seek to curb commercial development ride in automobiles that represent mineral products from 12 countries, and have become used to luxuries that are now necessities.

"Even if it were possible, there remains the question whether there would be an ethical, moral, intellectual or artistic gain in curbing industrial demands. This is a topic of endless academic discussion, but academic it will doubtless remain," Prof. Leith concluded.

SEEK THIRD CIRCUIT COURT FOR DANE-CO

Madison—(P)—Creation of a third Dane-co circuit court probably to be located in the state capitol building and to be limited to state cases will be asked in a senate bill to be introduced by Sen. Glenn D. Roberts of Madison during the 1933 legislative session.

A committee of Madison lawyers is now working on the proposal with Mr. Roberts and while the Madison bar has not officially taken action regarding the plan, the committee reports all lawyers so far solicited have approved.

Dane county now has two circuit courts, offices of both being located in the courthouse. Judge A. C. Hoppmann and Judge A. G. Zimmerman preside in these courts.

The Dane county circuit court judges must also sit in cases arising in Sauk county circuit court.

Lawyers sponsoring the bill for creation of a third court in Madison contend that the many cases arising out of the railroad and industrial commission in the capitol place excessive demands on time of the judges.

The third judge, under their plan, would occupy a room in the capitol and would confine himself to hearing these commission cases, especially those which may be heard without a jury. A small room would satisfy the needs of the court, the lawyers say.

WHAT'LL THEY DO NEXT?

Cincinnati, Ohio—Another of that legion of fathers, who cannot understand their sons, lodged a complaint at police headquarters that his son, 20, had phoned from a nearby town that he was trading his auto for an airplane. But the youth beat the cops and then as proof flew over his home and waved at the glowering pater.

No Lures Are "Best," Says Badger Fisherman

BY B. A. CLAFLIN

Figuratively speaking, when the flame in the fire-place leaps high, generously fed to offset the wintry winds that moan and whistle without, there are those who dream of conquests of a departed season on their favorite stream or lake, and wish in vain that they might, like the bears, hibernate, to awaken only when the soft, balmy winds of spring again lure them to the land of their dreams.

And yet, to him who fishes for the love of it, rather than for the fish alone, the winter months are not without their pleasures. Personally, I derive much fun from answering the many letters I receive from anglers who seek to better themselves in their chosen sport.

Some request me to point out one all-round lure for certain waters; two Appleton fishermen asked me last week to name the "best" bait for muskies, and one man actually begged me to use my "influence" to get permission for him to dam a navigable stream in order that he might inaugurate a fur farm.

In my replies I tried to convey to them how manifestly impossible it was to gratify their requests. In my collection of tackle I have lures of almost every conceivable pattern for about every kind of fresh water fish. And yet, when I am on the stream or lake, I am generally at a loss to know what pattern of fly or what make of "plug" to use for best results. The only way to find out is to try one after another until I hit the right one.

One day, under certain weather conditions, when there is a decided ripple on the surface of the water, a surface plug will get you bass when nothing else will do. The next day, perhaps, in the same identical place, but under different conditions, the surface lure will be ignored entirely, and nothing but an underwater minnow will induce the fish to strike.

As for the "best" musky bait, I am forced to acknowledge defeat. Over in the Hayward region, on the Chipewa river and on Lower Twin lake, a certain spinner brought us eight musky strikes one morning. On Manitowish waters this lure proved absolutely barren of results. The only lure that appealed to them, at least when I was there, was a number six spoon. On Pelican lake, I landed some good specimens on a different type of bait.

From the above it will be inferred that one must be prepared with at least a fair assortment of standard lures in order to meet conditions as one finds them. I am always glad to assist all I can in pointing out what constitutes a fair assortment, giving the names and where they can be purchased, as well as to "blaze the trail" to the lakes and streams which my experience has taught me to be good fishing waters.

Now is the time to get out the tackle box and oil the hooks lest they become rusted and weak. Also, look to your rods. In case of a bamboo, replace all defective windings, and give it a coat of spar varnish. Hang it up for a week or so by the tip. Give your enameled lines a dressing; oil your reels, and keep your entire tackle in a dry evenly heated room. While you do these things, your mind will wander backward or forward to days of unalloyed pleasure which you have enjoyed or hope to enjoy the coming season, and you will not find the winter months entirely devoid of interest.

The dew is the condensed breath of the earth, according to modern weather experts. Maybe that song should read: "Maxwellton's braes are bonny, where early the breath of the earth condenses."

NOMINATION PAPERS ACCEPTABLE, JAN. 12

Although there has been practically no talk of spring elections and few rumors as to who might run for office to succeed aldermen whose terms expire, it might be interesting for politicians to learn the dates of the primary and general spring elections. The primaries will be held on March 12 and the general election on April 2. Nomination papers will be accepted by the city clerk beginning Jan. 12.

FREIGHT SHIPMENTS HEAVIER THIS WEEK

Freight traffic on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad was exceptionally heavy during the Christmas period, and far exceeded shipments of other years, according to W. W. Fradenburg, local yardmaster. Traffic was heavy Wednesday because no freight trains were operated on Christmas day, and as a result it was necessary for trains to carry a double load.

Train number 295 passing through this city headed for northern cities at 7:30 Wednesday morning carried a string of over 100 cars, an exceptionally large load, according to Mr. Fradenburg. Other freight trains carried from 50 to 80 cars, most of them filled with the regular line of freight. Other rail lines passing

TAX NOTICES WILL BE SENT OUT NEXT MONDAY

The last step in preparing the tax roll for collection beginning Dec. 31, now is being undertaken by clerks in the city clerk's and treasurer's offices. Wednesday they started making out the tax notices which will be mailed out next Monday. Until that time the treasurer's office will be unable to give out any information on the amount of taxes property owners will have to pay.

Experiments are now being made in England with a view to finding a suitable substitute for cotton.
